British soldiers are entering the toughen their feet. First they will use soft ground, then harder turf.

LESS THAN A NICKEL

for a cool, refreshing night's sleep!

If you think that a bedroom as cool as a sleeping porch is a luxury—and far too expensive for your means—you haven't heard about the new method of house-cooling hundreds of your neighbors are now using... cooling by means of an ATTIC FAN.

"What's the point of cooling an attic?" you ask. "We don't sleep up there."

Here's the reason. When your house soaks up heat all day, the attic becomes a bake-oven—with temperatures often reaching 130 degrees. Then at night, this blanket of heat hangs immovably overhead, making the rooms below stifling and unbearable. Sleep is often impossible until the early hours of the morning. If there were some way to blow air into the attic—so that the cool night air would rise and circulate through the house. The temperature drops as much as 7 to 14 degrees (depending on outdoor temperatures) making your rooms comfortable. Cost of operation is only about 1/4¢ an hour.

Department stores, electrical dealers, and fan-dealers will gladly give you full information about this low-cost method of house cooling. Stop in or telephone today. The Detroit Edison Company (We do not sell or install this equipment.)

Ragweed Control Work Stiffened by Highway

The state highway department is redoubling its ragweed control work along trunkline roadsides in Michigan with complete eradication the ultimate goal in northern Michigan areas where there is slight occurrence of the weed.

State Highway Commissioner G. Donald Kennedy has ordered the department's maintenance division to move weeds roadsides, with particular attention to areas where ragweeds occur. The ragweeds, whose irritating pollen causes 90 per cent of the suffering from hay fever, will soon blossom in northern Michigan. Cutting now will prevent the plant from flowering and reduce the amount of pollen released into the air.

"We intend to do everything we can to preserve ragweed free areas of northern Michigan for the thousands of hay fever sufferers who go there annually to find relief from their affliction," Kennedy added.

The work of the state highway department is necessarily confined to trunkline rights-of-way. However, many communities are sponsoring ragweed eradication programs and with public cooperation and support ragweed large areas of northern Michigan, without such control measures ragweed will spread into vacant lots, along alleys, railroad and highway rights-of-way.

Kennedy announced that Ralph S. King, professor of chemistry at the Michigan College of Mining and Technology, Houghton, has been employed by the highway department to use a chemical spray in efforts to completely eradicate ragweed along trunklines in Houghton and Keweenaw counties. Mr. King has made a ten-year study of ragweed eradication methods in the Copper Country.

Housewives Urged to Can Michigan Peaches

Every Farmington housewife can become a defense worker right in her own home if she makes her kitchen a workshop for the canning of the many Michigan fruit and vegetable products that are both economical and easy to put up for winter use.

Not the least of these are peaches, of which Michigan's 1941 crop is estimated at 2,850,000 bushels. Peaches are among the easiest fruits to can and at current sugar prices make an inexpensive yet delightful dessert.

The chief peach variety in Michigan is the Elberta which is top for home canning. Of Michigan's huge peach crop, more than a million bushels are being sold at the city-owned and city-operated market at DeLeon Harbor during the coming weeks. Thus Farmington will be supplied with ample peaches until late in the year.

Whether the open kettle method or such systems as the hotwater bath, cold pack or oven method are employed Farmington housewives can get good results with peaches.
