

J.P. Gadbaw Weds In Larchmont, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. John Patrick Gadbaw are living in Ypsilanti and attending Eastern Michigan University following their wedding in St. John, N.Y. Paul Catholic Church, Larchmont, N.Y.

The bride is the former Donna Elizabeth Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Grant Mitchell of Larchmont. The bridegroom's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Gadbaw of Farmington.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. George Bards officiated at the nuptial mass and Bruce Angeli, the bride's uncle, was the organist.

GIVEN IN MARRIAGE by her father, the bride wore an empire gown of ivory silk organza with a chapel train and with venise lace trim. Her elbow-length French illusion veil was attached to a cap of matching lace, and she carried sweetheart roses, white daisies and baby's breath.

Joan Farley of Larchmont was maid of honor, and Christine Byrne of Larchmont, the bride's cousin, was the bridesmaid. They wore gowns of turquoise and purple print voile and carried white daisies and blue cornflowers.

Francis Antczak of Waterbury, Conn., was best man, and Joseph and Michael Gadbaw, brothers of the bridegroom, were the ushers. A reception was held in the Larchmont Shore Club.

The bride has completed three years at the College of New Rochelle. Her husband, a graduate of Our Lady of Sorrows High School in Farmington, attended Fordham University.

Northville Hospital Volunteer Job Helps Dietetics Student

A forthcoming year of schoolwork will be a good deal more practical because a student became a volunteer.

That is the claim of Mrs. Donna French, 37962 Parkhurst, Livonia, who planned last spring to return to school to complete her remaining hours in dietetics at Mercy College of Detroit.

Hopefully, she inquired last spring about the possibility of volunteering in Northville State Hospital's food department. And on June 7 she began a 12-week period there in the special diets section.

THROUGH A PLAN of working three mornings a week with Mrs. Lois Edgar, the dietetic supervisor and an employee of 11 years standing, and Mrs. Katherine Pierson, cook, a hospital employee of 11½ years, Mrs. French became aware of the close communication lines which exist among the medical and nursing services and the diet department.

For Mrs. Edgar that was her first experience at having the services of a volunteer in her section.

Mrs. French had an opportunity to interview the patients for whom special diets were prepared and she learned directly from them their likes and dislikes.

She recalls that in one situation it was indeed helpful for her to explain to a patient who failed to eat certain foods due to a religious conviction that he required a balance of foods, including all the nutrients. The time and patience a volunteer can provide in such situations proves to be most important.

"I feel that through this

assignment," Mrs. French commented, "everybody benefited — the cooks, the patients, and myself. The practical experience gained prior to this last year of school is invaluable to me, particularly when I shall have a class in diet therapy, commencing next February."

"AT NORTHVILLE State Hospital," added Mrs. Jean Bachelidor, volunteer services coordinator, "we make a special effort to learn of a volunteer's specific interest."

"Then, through a knowledge of many areas of service for volunteers of young adult age and over, we do our best to plan a worthwhile assignment."

"In one situation, it may be artwork with a group of adult patients, in another a special interest in a young adult. We trust that in each situation the volunteer activity at once is of value to all concerned."
