Red Cross Helps Solve Problems Of Our Recruits

Through Its Directors In Camps Red Cross Links Men With Home

Washington, D. C.—On the home and military fronts the American Red Cross is turning its focus on the man in uniform. In his behalf, more than 10,000 nurses are being recruited. Volunteers are donating their blood for a huge plasma bank. Red Cross women in chapters throughout the country are making 40,000,000 surgical dressings, and knitting sweaters for men in outfitting posts and sailors on patrol. But these are just fragments of the story. In military and naval stations, the Red Cross is concerning itself with the personal problem of the service man, helping him adjust himself to military life. For the disabled, the Red Cross is on the job in service hospitals, helping to speed recovery of the sick through a morale-building program.

In mobilizing a 2,000,000-man fighting force, the personal problem of the soldier and sailor in uniform have in turn become problems of the morale divisions. Red Cross field directors stationed in all camps and reservations have been entrusted with the task of helping to solve these problems.

Speaking in a nation-wide broadcast recently, Chief of Staff Marshall, of the Army, addressed the following words to Red Cross field directors: "When you help straighten out any of the great variety of tangles that human beings seem unable to avoid, you are helping to maintain morale on the home front and on the military front; you are helping us in training for defense."

The disabled man in a service hospital also can look to the Red Cross for help in speeding recovery. Medical-social workers, trained for their specialized assignment, are on duty at Army general and Navy hospitals to aid service physicians, to act as a medium of com-

Archers Score on Gas and Burlap Deer

Oscar, the patient excelsior and burlap deer with gasoline engine power, bolts round and round in a circle to give practicing archers shots from all directions. Michigan's low-and-arrow deer hunters, some 600 strong last season, may be increased this year by the prospect of shooting deer of either sex in central Allegan county and of shooting a doe or buck for camp use in the entire northern deer hunting area. Both in the north and at Allegan the archers' season is November 1-14 inclusive.

Chickenpox Most Prevalent Of Communicable Diseases

The fifth in a series of articles prepared from material in files of the Oakland County Health Department, concerns Communicable diseases, other than those which have been treated in separate articles. "Chickenpox was the most prevalent disease reported in 1940 as it has been in other years, with each community having its share of cases. Chickenpox is a minor disease, rarely serious, and is seldom followed by complications. Every household, however, is visited by a representative of the health department. 1,557 cases were reported."

"Measles, with 1,537 cases reported, was the second most prevalent disease. The outbreak predicted for the Spring of 1941, was well under way during the latter months of 1940. Measles is a serious disease for children under three or four years of age and is frequently followed by damaging complications. The public was repeatedly informed of the expected outbreak and advised to safeguard their infants. Little can be accomplished in preventing the spread of this disease because of its highly infectious nature during the early stages before symptoms of the disease have been recognized."

"Scarlet Fever, a major disease, was third in order of prevalence with 648 cases reported. The incidence of this disease was slightly lower than it has been in recent years. Scarlet Fever, though milder in nature than past years, may also be followed by serious complications. The mildness of many cases, some of which may go unrecognized makes this disease a difficult one to control. Only through the cooperation and alertness of physicians, teachers and parents can the incidence of this disease be reduced. "Whooping cough was fourth in the number of cases reported with only 352 cases one half as many as the year before. This is a serious disease for infants and children under five years of age. Unlike the other diseases of high incidence, however, whooping cough is preventable. Considerable effort has been made by health department personnel to encourage parents to have babies and young children immunized against this disease. These efforts, together with the cooperation of private physicians and the vaccine for prevention furnished through the State Department of Health, may account to some degree for this gratifying reduction in the incidence of whooping cough."

"Pneumonia, the cause of more deaths than any other acute infection, comes fifth in order of incidence. 145 cases of pneumonia were reported with 59 deaths resulting. Both the incidence and the death rate from this disease were unusually low in 1940 in Oakland County and throughout the State."

"Tuberculosis, comes next with 30 cases of this disease reported. There were 37 deaths from tuberculosis giving a death rate of 19.7. This is one of the lowest death rates from this cause in the state and about one-half that of the state as a whole."

"Diphtheria is decreasing each year. Ten cases were reported, two of which resulted in death. Three of these cases were in the same family and only came to the attention of the health department after the family called a physician to see a four year old child who was then dying. It is interesting to note that eight of the ten cases reported were in adults. The second death was also in an adult."

"Polio, familiarly called infantile paralysis was next in order. Although the state as a whole experienced the most serious outbreak of this disease ever recorded, only nine cases were reported in Oakland County as compared to 67 the preceding year. No deaths occurred from this cause."

"Three cases of Typhoid fever were reported, and but two cases of Smallpox occurred, during the year 1940."

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Several members of the Local Council of Girl Scouts attended a special training course for leaders, held at Pontiac Monday evening. Miss Otto, national field representative for this region, with headquarters in Chicago, conducted the session. Those from Farmington who attended the course were Mrs. W. A. Nelson, Mrs. A. T. Beals, Mrs. Edgar Pierce, and Mrs. H. R. Locker.

The regular October meeting of the Local Council of Girl Scouts was held Thursday, October 30, at the home of Mrs. W. A. Nelson, Commissioner.

Mrs. Nelson announced that she would entertain at a tea on Wednesday, November 12, for those Girl Scout mothers who responded to the questionnaires sent out by the council for the purpose of stimulating interest and a more general participation in the Girl Scout program.

Those who attended were Mrs. A. T. Beals, Mrs. Claude Haskins, Mrs. H. R. Locker, Mrs. Edward Faulkner, Mrs. Paul Shoemaker, and Mrs. Nelson.

The Girl Scout bake sale, held by the local council of Girl Scouts last Saturday for the purpose of raising funds for the furtherance of the Girl Scout program in the community, was an outstanding success, due to the splendid cooperation of the Girl Scout mothers and other members of the community. The Girl Scout organization greatly appreciates the generous support accorded this event.

The girls of Troop 5 are diligently applying their efforts to their Red Cross work. The meeting this week also included a hike to the Lathrup farm. The girls are trying to obtain a supply of pine cones preparatory to project upon which they plan to start work, very shortly.

The girls of Troop 7 are concentrating their efforts upon their second class scout work. They are endeavoring to attain their second class rank and now are working upon their glass and hostess badges. Two new members are joining the troop soon.

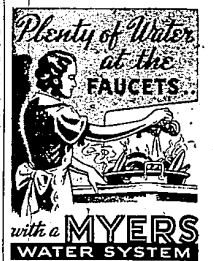

A Halloween party, featuring games and songs and speeches by some of the scouts, was held by Troop 6 last week. The girls plan to start working on their Goodwill dolls this week.

Work on their Red Cross layettes and sweaters is keeping the girls of Troop 1 plenty busy these days. The meeting this week was devoted to this service.
