

PIANIST JAMES TOCCO and cellist Mario DiFiore will be presented in a free concert Wednesday evening, Oct. 20, at 8 p.m., in the Liberal Arts Theater. They are a popular attraction at the college. (Observer photo)

Studio Tours Tocco, DiFiore Set For Oct. 17

Guided tours through all the studios will be a feature of an open house at the art school of the Society of Arts and Crafts, 245 E. Kirby (between John R. and Brush), on Sunday, Oct. 17, from 11:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. There will be demonstrations by students and instructors in fine arts.

To Give Concert

The combined artistry of Mario DiFiore, cellist, and James Tocco, pianist, will be presented in concert at Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia, Oct. 20. Their program will be presented in the Liberal Arts Theater at 8 p.m. It includes sonatas by Vivaldi, Prokofiev and Robert W. Jones. Schoolcraft's composer-in-residence. They will also play Beethoven's "Seven Variations on a Theme in E-Flat Major" from Mozart's "Magic Flute."

DICK BENSEK

The Caesar salad is said to have originated in California, but its exact place of origin remains a mystery. Still, it is a favorite among American salad lovers. Brown two or three cloves garlic in olive oil until golden, remove. Add 1 cup bread cubes, saute until golden on all sides, remove, and drain. Then add the croutons and 1/4 cup garlic salt to 2 qts. mixed salad greens and toss. Add 2 anchovy fillets, diced, 4 lbs. olive oil, 1 and 1/2 lbs. red wine vinegar, 1 lb. grated cheese. Then add 1 raw or coddled egg and beat quickly until blended into the salad. This dish is a fine meal in itself, and also does well when used as buffet!

DANISH INN, 32305 Grand River Ave., 476-5320 is a favorite restaurant for lovers of fine food. Our lunch menu features three specials daily and there is a special children's menu complete with crayon to keep the youngsters busy while their parents relax. At night we feature Pat Flowers at the keyboard from 8:30 PM to closing. Tues. thru Sat.

HELPFUL HINT: If you make hotcakes oval-shaped, more will fit into the frying pan at one time!

MRS. MARIAN STICKELS (education consultant)

Amusements Piano Teachers Will Have 6 Seminars

Schoolcraft College will conduct a piano workshop for teachers of the area featuring Mrs. Marian Stickels, education consultant for the Frances Clark Library for Piano Students.

The workshop will consist of six "seminars for progressive piano teachers" to be held on 16 Monday mornings from 9 to 12 beginning Oct. 18.

MRS. STICKELS is a certified teacher with the Michigan Music Teachers Association. She has studied with Frances Clark and has been personally selected by her to serve as educational consultant for this area.

Highlight of the seminars will be action-packed teaching films made at the new school for music study at Princeton. They show a class of young beginners progressing through the first year of piano study and demonstrate an approach to piano education that builds complete musicianship from the start.

ALSO INCLUDED will be films of intermediate and advanced students so that teachers can hear and see the long-range benefits of this program.

The cost for the seminar is $35 and registration will be held from 8:30 to 9 a.m., Oct. 18 in the Liberal Arts Little Theatre on the Schoolcraft campus. Donald Morelock of the Schoolcraft Music Department is in charge of the workshop.

Organ Music Conference Begins Oct. 17

ANN ARBOR Internationally-known organist and composer Maurice Durufle and his wife, Marie-Madeleine Durufle-Chevalier, will give lecture-demonstrations at the 11th annual conference on organ music to be held at the University of Michigan Oct. 17 to 19.

A number of recitals are planned during the conference and they will be open to the public. Lecture-recitals or demonstrations will be open to conference registrants only. Anyone interested may register at a cost of $10 per day. All students may attend free of charge.

To register, write or call the Conference Department, University Extension Service, 412 Maynard, Ann Arbor, 6814.

'Kotch' Notable For Its Charm

By BETTY MASSON

Great acting by Walter Matthau, looking like a good-humored troll, and great directing by Jack Lemmon in his first venture in this field, make "Kotch," a movie of rare and effin charm. It's enough to renew your faith in Hollywood, and if there's any justice it just might be enough to win team up to solve their problems. This they do beautifully. We recommend "Kotch" for all people with parents.

Matthau and Lemmon Academy Awards.

CHARM AND HUMOR in a movie that has a great deal of relevance? Practically unheard of, except by the man who said you catch more flies with honey than with vinegar. The movie is about the problems of a pregnant teenager, an upwardly mobile couple and the aged.

Matthau is the latter, a 70-ish widower, Mr. Kotcher, who comes to live with his son and daughter-in-law and promptly drives his daughter-in-law up the wall with his non-stop expertise on every conceivable subject. A former traveler in hardware, he especially fancies himself as an expert on medical problems.

He's also a man who loves children, and in the film's opening there are some great shots of the old gentleman enjoying his role as a babysitter for his infant grandson.

But daughter-in-law decides he's no longer competent and hires a teenager, who invites her boyfriend in while she's babysitting. Kotch, remembering his 1925 Essex, decides not to blow the whistle on her.

SOON KOTCH gets the message that he's no longer wanted around the house, and the girl, Erica, played by Deborah Winters is shipped out of town for her offenses against morality.

Kotch considers the retirement home suggested by his son and his wife, but thinks better of it after facing a battery of psychological tests. "You take these tests and then we can put you through the computer," says the psychologist.

"Not me, you don't!" is his reply.

He tries traveling on a Greyhound bus and there are some poignant scenes of his travels and his loneliness, especially touching because he always has a smile lurking beneath his sadness and a puppy-like (St. Bernard) readiness to overwhelm anyone willing to listen to him.

Players Rehearse Comedy

The Farmington Players are rehearsing nightly for "See How They Run" their first play of the season. Billed as a "wholesome comedy," it is set in a small English village parsonage. Producer Joanne Kaman is being aided by Vic Hill as assistant director. Besides being a native Englishman, Hill has had a varied background of experience in theatrical productions, as has the director, Dennis Broadhead. Two newcomers, Kattie Bellow and Mike Cullin, join veterans Stu Orman, Debbie Messer, Bob Gregory, Dianne Brown, Sal Sisto, John Barrett and Pete Turgeon as cast members.

Performances are scheduled for the first three weekends in November, Nov. 5-7, 12-14 and 19-20 in the Players Barn, 12 Mile between Orchard Lake and Farmington Roads. Season tickets are available by contacting Eleanor or Dale Johnson, 24125 Locust, Farmington.
