Ear corn stuck on spikes driven through branches or boards will help game birds through difficult winter days, and keep them on the farm in spite of ice and deep snow. Also recommended for game bird feeding stations are cracked corn, wheat and barley, and a little grit.

F. W. LOWRIE IS SPEAKER ON LEGION PROGRAM

The text of the message delivered by Frank W. Lowrie, 17th District, American Legion, is calling for the assistance of The American Legion and the general public, in securing 1500 Flying Cadets in this Sixth Corps Area, which comprises Michigan, Illinois, and Wisconsin. We are at war, and these Flying Cadets must come in much faster than they are.

"There are three ways of becoming flyers in the United States Army Air Corps, for men who have less than two years of college. First: men with only one year of college are accepted for this service if they are physically qualified, unmarried, and have no semesters of Mathematics, including Arithmetic, Algebra, Plane Geometry, Trigonometry, and one year of English grammar and Composition. In addition, these one-year college men must have one full year of any two of the following five subjects: United States History, World History, Elementary Physics, Inorganic Chemistry, and any modern language except English. Applicants who can show a transcript from an accredited college in these subjects as previously stated, may enter the Air Corps, and it is possible to get them into the Corps in a matter of some 24 hours. It is also possible to apply for the physical examination at Selfridge Field directly.

"The second means of entering the Air Corps as Aviation Cadets for men with less than two years of college, is by taking the entrance examinations which are given in the months of February, May, August, and November. An average grade of 70 percent must be obtained in Advanced Arithmetic, First Year Algebra, including quadratics, Plane Geometry, Trigonometry, English Grammar, and Composition. In addition to these, the applicant must also write an examination on two of the following, which are the same as previously stated: United States History, General History, Elementary Physics, Inorganic Chemistry, and any modern language except English. The third means of entering the Air Corps with a chance of being an Air Corps pilot is restricted to high school graduates who must enlist as private soldiers and be selected for flight training to become Flight Sergeants. In Detroit, apply at Room 631, Federal Building.

"For the benefit of those who must have refresher courses in the school subjects, which have been mentioned at this time, there are such refresher courses in Detroit at the University of Detroit, Wayne University, and the Lawrence Institute of Technology. A four refresher course is taught at Grand Rapids Junior College, Grand Rapids, Michigan, and a fifth is given by the Mott Foundation at Flint.

"The age limits for Air Corps pilots are from 19 to 27 years. However, to take these refresher courses, one must pass the Air Corps physical examination and be between the ages of 20 and 28 years. At one time we had refresher courses started for prospective

Air Corps pilots in junior colleges and colleges at Port Huron, Bay City, Midland, Kalamazoo and Lansing. But, the lack of students compelled these schools to discontinue such classes. They can be started again if the American Legion and the general public will cooperate. This is our war and we must win it.
