Children You and I Know

You have seen her and so have I, this little golden haired tyke. She meets you on the street every day, always smiling, always happy. Sure you know her—she lives over on the street back of your house. She is not a lot different than the other kids in your neighborhood, a little more cheerful maybe and held down by a steel brace on her left leg. That's right—you know her now, don't you?

Every time you see her you say, under your breath, "spunk." When she opens up with that great big smile you can't help but smile right back, no matter how tough a day you have had. No day could be as tough as the fight this little pal of yours is waging. She is fighting to keep up with the world and doing it with a smile. You don't hear her asking for help. You don't find her crying in a corner,—she's out there trudging along half keeping up with her playmates, fighting every inch of the way.

That is the kind of spirit we turn around and look at twice. The kind of spirit that makes people like you and I wonder just what we have to holler about. You and I both can do something to keep that type of spirit living.

Your admiration for that little girl and all that she stands for and is fighting for can be turned into genuine help by buying Easter Seals. The money derived from these seals goes to the Michigan Society for Crippled Children, which is affiliated with the national organization. These funds go to the maintenance and care of thousands of little girls and boys who, like that little girl who lives on the street back of your house, is fighting a battle as gigantic as life itself.

Let's all chip in and help those Children You and I Know.

Salvage For Victory

Have you checked your basement and attic yet for salvage material? If you haven't today would be a swell time to do it. You will be starting your spring clean-up campaign soon anyway and now is not a bit too soon. While you're digging through your winter's accumulation why not keep the salvage for victory slogan on your mind?

Your Boy Scouts will be around soon asking for papers, old rags, old metal coat hangers, iron of all kinds, copper and cardboard. Have it all ready for them. There is a lot of this material around your home and you will be doing yourself and the war program a big favor by putting it in the hands of your Boy Scouts. Not only can this be salvaged into needed war supplies but you will be reducing the danger of fire in your own home.

This is one big job anyone and everyone can do and the time is getting late.

MAC ARTHUR IN COMMAND

The public is not complacent. War Production Board Chairman Nelson asserted last week. In the second of his weekly broadcasts to the Nation. The public intends to get production of weapons in one way or another, he warned, and neither management nor labor nor the members of the War Production Board—"could survive the public wrath should that wrath be turned against them."

Later in the week a plan book, carried to 2,000 prime manufacturers the WPB's suggestions on the operation of the National Production Drive. Mr. Nelson scheduled 31 regional conferences of labor and management to speed up the making of guns, ships, planes, tanks, Mr. Nelson said. In addition a rationing program for used typewriters was announced because at least a large part of the typewriter factories will make gun parts and other war materials. (Rentals of used typewriters will not be limited.)

Other restrictions continued the long battle to keep war materials flowing into the war factories. The Division of Industry Operations curtailed bicycle manufacture to save critical metals and rubber. Low pressure heating boilers were changed to conserve steel and brass. Production of farm tractors requiring rubber tires was ordered stopped after May 1. Manufacturers of the types of farm machinery covered by a limitation order were notified that all of them are subject to the restrictions of the order whether or not they use its priority assistance.

"Reality" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, March 29.
The Golden Text (Luke 6:45) is: "A good man out of the good treasure of his heart bringeth forth that which is good."
Among the Bible citations in this passage (Ezekiel 14:5-10): "The Lord is good to all: and his tender mercies are over all his works, O ye workers shall praise thee, O Lord; and thy saints shall bless thee."
Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 331): "The Scriptures imply that God is All-in-all. From this it follows that nothing possesses reality nor existence except the divine Mind and His ideas."

Looking Back Through The Enterprise Files

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO (Friday, March 30, 1917)
The nineteenth annual meeting of the Ladies' Literary Club occurred Wednesday, March 28th at the home of Mrs. Ella Irish. The election of officers for the coming year was held. The results are as follows: President, Mrs. Ina Hamilton; Vice President, Mrs. Imogene Bickins; Secretary, Mrs. Anna Cook; Treasurer, Mrs. Zayda Wilber; and Librarian, Miss Mary Kennedy.

Mrs. John Schroeder
Marie Esch Schroeder passed away at her home here on the evening of March 26, 1917, after suffering severely with stomach trouble for some time. Born in Wildberg, Germany, in 1847 she came to this country in 1870. In 1871 she married John Schroeder and six children were born, five sons and one daughter, death having claimed the daughter and two sons. She is survived by her husband and three sons, Herman, of West Farmington; Albert, who lives on the old homestead near Plymouth, and Louis, of Cass Lake.

TEN YEARS AGO (Thursday, March 24, 1932)
Farmers of this area will be able to participate in the highest classification of crop loans for 1931 authorized by the federal government as a part of the work of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Regulations announced this week provided that owners of orchards may borrow from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation up to $25 an acre for spraying, fertilizer and dust materials to add them in producing their crop for 1932.
Farmington Man Considered For Grand Jury Head
While the appointment has not been made definitely, former Superior Harry N. McCracken of Farmington Township "is being seriously considered" for the foremanship of the new Oakland County Grand Jury which is to convene next Monday, Circuit Judge Frank L. Covert told the Enterprise Thursday morning.

FIVE YEARS AGO (Thursday, March 25, 1937)
Contests Appear in City Election
At least three contests for offices in the Farmington City election to be held a week from Monday loomed as time limit for filing petitions drew near. With the deadline only a few hours away as this issue went to press, places for which contests were indicated were two places on the city commission, and the office of Justice of the Peace. Petitions have been filed or are in circulation for three present commissioners, Leo Gildemeister, Emory Hutton and Harold Oldenburg.
Tool Concern Prepares to Open Factory
After several months of extensive repairs, the new branch of the Precise Tool and Manufacturing company on Grand River avenue, Farmington is ready for occupancy. The building was formerly occupied by the Park garage.

Living Religion

Rev. Howard Buschling

The most important movement within Protestantism at present, in the opinion of your columnist, is the United Christian Education Advance. It is noteworthy, non-sectarian, and covers 90 per cent of Protestantism. Its purpose is to reach the 50 per cent of the children and youth of America who have no religious training. The Advance will cover three years, beginning with a series of 140 one-day conferences held over the country within the next two months, and continuing with innumerable meetings, addresses, discussions, publicity, projects, and plans of all kinds to reach the local church and help the local church reach its people in a more complete way. It is the most ambitious undertaking that we have ventured. We will surely need and expect the help of God. Remember that it is interdenominational.
Sir Stafford Cripps, who now plays so important a role on the world stage, said in an interview with the Methodist Recorder of London, "There must be a new intention and determination to carry into all the activities of our daily life the fundamental teaching of the New Testament. That means that we must be prepared to accept all their implications for our social and political life."
I noticed a little item about a Catholic nun who spoke before the Cleveland Civic Association and warned its members that certain "comic" magazines were a peril to our youth. This writer thought these have no real humor in them, but are filled with bizarre characters, which fascinate children by their unreality. The content is largely crime, sex, and carnal and amazing "adventure" situations. A recent survey of the stuff suggested that 70 per cent of it would not be printed by any decent newspaper. I have long wanted to speak out against these "comic magazines." The law ought to ban them. Until it does, we can at least ban them from our homes.
Farmington, like many communities, is showing a movie on the life of Jesus this Lenten season. Our own local theatre will present "The Life of Our Saviour" on March 27, at 2:00 p. m. The churches of Farmington are sponsoring the picture and urging people to attend. The school is cooperating also and will sell tickets and excuse from school every boy and girl who buys a ticket.
Palm Sunday, March 29, is the observance of the triumphal entry of Jesus into Jerusalem on the Sunday just preceding his crucifixion. Though the people many times wanted to make Jesus a king, this was the only occasion that he allowed a public demonstration in his honor. For he knew that the people were thinking of a king who had the authority of force, while he had the authority of love. Today we still think of sublimity in terms of force instead of love. There is our mistake.
