Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lenz were the Saturday evening dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Konopalski of Detroit.

W.S.C.S. PROGRAM WILL FEATURE BORNEO SPEAKERS

A most interesting program has been arranged starting with a style show of aprons, given by Mrs. William Harris, who is in charge of the fancy work booth at the fair. During lunch, fashions and styles in aprons from the practical big ones of Grandmothers' day to the tiny wings of grandma covering the hostess' frock of today, will be shown.

The main speakers of the meeting will be Rev. and Mrs. F. H. Sullivan, whose topic will be "Our Experiences in Borneo." Reverend Sullivan is now pastor of the Lincoln Park Church in Flint, Michigan but from 1909 to 1933 he and Mrs. Sullivan served as missionaries in Borneo. During the years 1926 to 1928 Reverend Sullivan was District Superintendent of the Singapore District. Their wide experiences make them very interesting speakers.

Mrs. George Nowlin will be chairman of publicity for the Christmas Bazaar.

The Executive Committee of the W.S.C.S. will meet at the church at 11 o'clock, preceding the luncheon and meeting on Thursday, September 17.

THIS WEEK AT YOUR LIBRARY

Wednesday—11:30 a. m. to 1:30 p. m.—3:00 p. m. to 8:00 p. m.
Saturday—2:00 p. m. to 9:00 p. m.

The Boston Cooking School Cook Book—Fannie Merritt Farmer.

This is the latest revision of this well known cook book and our library is most happy to have it. Many of the recipes have been revised and the menus changed. This new edition emphasizes the importance of basic recipes, which are a valuable aid to cooks of long standing as well as beginners. The book includes recipes to suit all pocket books and tastes. When the thought comes "What will I have for dinner," it's time we consult a good cook book and try something different on our family. Makes a nice gift for a bride or that "hard to get for" person.

The Book of Cowboys—Holling C. Holling. What boy and girl doesn't know what cowboys do and know why he wears his big heeled boots or a bandana—or those fascinating, cumbersome chaps? There is a reason for each and a story behind that reason. Many of the stories go back to when the West was the real wild and wooly place that children of today "playland" it is now. Back to when only animals and Indians roamed the plains.

The adventures of Peter and Barbara Ann, who are "innocent as lambs," and learn as they did about the exciting life of the cowboy. Miracle on the Congo—Ben Lucien Burman. This is the first and the first of the Free French Front. Mr. Burman, after the fall of France, was the first to reach the Free French at Brazzaville in Equatorial Africa. It was there that he sent his now famous cables telling of the treachery of the Vichy regime, and how the real France was being reborn in the fever-ridden Congo.

Statements and prophecies that Mr. Burman has made, have proven startlingly true. No one was more startled by the fall of France than he, and when the leaders of the free French movement stated they would resist the Armistice, he sought them out and learned the truth. He arrived at their hidden headquarters after many miles of travel, through some parts never before entered by white man.

This book answers many questions regarding the policy of the Vichy Government. It describes Brazzaville, humid village of ebony and ivory, suddenly grown to international importance. The equatorial forests and its pygmy inhabitants are vividly pictured.

Note a novel, but so interestingly told, that your attention never wavers and we gain a clearer understanding of the inside battles being fought to save all free men.

The Smiler With the Knife—Nicholas Blake. With each succeeding novel, Nicholas Blake's reputation as a writer of real mystery thrillers, has grown. People who can't pass a life insurance test, should never read this gripping story of murder and mystery.

The story is inspired by a plot to set up a dictatorship in England in the year 1944, and offers fans of Nicholas Blake a full measure of thrills and a new heroine—Georgia, clever wife of Nigel Strangeways. Her adventures in pursuit of a master-criminal lead her into sharp-witted conflict with a suave and sinister gentleman with whom she gambles her life and the fate of the Empire. Good reading for those nights when you can't sleep.

HAM AND FRUIT GARNISH

A delicious center cut slice of ham, garnished with apricot halves makes a lovely dish for any meal. It is especially suited for the "meal in a hurry" for the Sunday evening meal where something tasty and easy to prepare is wanted.

The combination of meat and fruit is usually a tasty one, and ham takes especially well to the addition of a fruit garnish. A fruit accompaniment can be used just as effectively with ham slices as with a whole ham. The combination of flavors is tempting, and the fruit will give a pretty appearance to this main dish.

Apricots, either dried or canned, are a fine accompaniment for a thick, juicy ham slice, says Inez S. Willson, home economist. If you use the dried fruit, cook the apricots and place the halves around the edge of a broiled ham slice. The canned apricots can be placed on the ham at the end of the broiling period, and then put into the broiler just long enough to heat them through. The apricot juice can be used to baste the ham slice while it is cooking.

THE GARDEN PATH

Instead of walking down the Garden Path today, let's take an imaginary stroll through the seasons and see if we can decide which is really the best.

We must start with Spring, because Spring seems to mean rebirth, and new beginning, far and away. After lying dormant under the warm rays of spring sun shine, everything breaks forth from the earth and the trees in striving for new beauty, new gains and greater successes. Spring arrives with the first gust of wind, that lonely frog back in the lot spot, where early thaws made a small frog pond. Mr. Frog acts as an alarm clock to the world and from his first heart-warming sound, things gradually awaken.

The warm come to add their cheerful note to this awakening world and to welcome back all the rest of the birds. The Crocus and tulips push their noses through the damp earth, seeking eagerly the warmth, that to them means life and eventually beauty to thrill the hearts of all mankind.

Spring is also known as the season of love—but many will contest that statement. Love can germinate in any degree of temperature and burst into its full lovely beauty in any season of the year.

We slip from Spring into Summer with nothing but the calendar to tell us—unless it's the warm lush abundance of everything. The birds are busy with their young and the days are long to give Mother Nature time to get her work done. Everything is pushing and striving to their limit to develop and ripen to maturity. Summer showers wash and clean the earth as nothing else can. And how green and sweet it looks and smells. A summer moon is radiant in its silvery light and at times turns night into day.

We know why Autumn comes—the maturity, the peak of everything has been reached. The goal has been attained—the strife and struggle has not been in vain. The trees are low and heavy with fruit, the soil laden with crops to be harvested.

The days are mellow, hazy and lovely. Spring and all its loveliness can't compare with the sheer beauty of the color of Autumn. In a veritable rainbow of colors, all shades and tints of green, reds, purples and browns, the fields and forests vie with each other to command the attention and admiration of men. In a last burst of strength, the air becomes invigorating and heady, and man feels renewed and vibrant. The Harvest and Hunters Moon is golden and outlives a world delivered of its fruits and ready to rest.

The first sharp frost strips the colorful beauty of the earth, and we go into winter—a silvery white world of snow. All the earth settles down to rest and wait—to be reborn.

How lovely the fields look in their blanket of snow, with the pale winter sun casting strange ghostly shadows for men to admire. The ethereal beauty of the high white moon in a star studded winter sky, is an awesome sight, hard to describe. With the wind whipping the snow into high banks and the temperature steadily dropping, man sits cozily in his warm, comfortable home and dreams of spring, summer, autumn and winter—the span of life that humans as well as Mother Earth go through.

I could add another season—and call it "Santa Claus Season," that which all children believe in and adults wish they could. It's that glorious week before and week after Christmas. In that two weeks are combined all the beauty, color, joy, happiness and romance that makes each of the other four seasons outstanding.

Which is best? That's a matter of personal opinion, there is something to enjoy in each one, and we all wait to look for that enjoyment.

Sure is
On the whole, we like a murder mystery play in which it turns out there was no murder. There's a chance to laugh.

AN UNUSUAL CAKE THAT EVERYONE WILL ENJOY

During the years of the depression, when one half of the population was on the welfare and the other half was trying to keep from getting on it, I heard the following incident: a person on the welfare was being derided for spending some of their allowance on candy and other luxuries, their reply was that just because they were poor, they had no reason for not liking such things.

That applies to all of us right now in this period of conservation. Every once in a while it is good for us and good for the morale in general, to splurge a little. When you are in one of those moods, here is something that will raise the spirits of anyone. A unique combination of flavors that is delicious; is combined in this soft, tender cake.

NUTMEG FEATHER CAKE

1 cup butter
1 cup shortening
1 1/2 cups sugar
3 beaten eggs
2 cups flour
1 tsp. Baking Powder
1/4 tsp. salt
1 tsp. cold
1 cup buttermilk
2 tsp. nutmeg
1/2 tsp. vanilla

Creaming shortening and sugar; add eggs and beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients, alternately with buttermilk and vanilla. Bake in a 10 inch square pan that is 2 inches deep (or its equivalent) in a 375 degree oven for 25 minutes.

TOP WITH—

BROILED COCONUT FROSTING

2 cups butter
1/2 cup brown sugar
1 rounding tsp. cornstarch
1/4 cup cream (canned milk will do nicely)
1/2 tsp. vanilla
1 cup shredded coconut

Combine all ingredients in small frying pan and let cook for a few minutes over a low fire. Spread on warm cake and brown under the broiler.

THE AROMA OF CHILI SAUCE IS IN THE AIR

What is more appetizing than the pungent, tantalizing smell of Chili Sauce boiling down on a late summer day. The last of the tomatoes are lying in the garden and to what better use could you put them, than making a few jars of Chili Sauce to be enjoyed through the winter months. You probably all have your own favorite recipe, but in case you haven't or would like to change, here is one that I can recommend most highly, having used and enjoyed it myself for nine years. I'm also giving the recipe cut in half, for those wishing to make just a small quantity.

CHILI SAUCE

1/2 bushel tomatoes—1 peck
15 large onions, grind—7
3 red peppers, grind—1
3 green peppers, grind—2
6 stalks celery cut—3
1/2 cup salt—1/4 cup
3 pounds brown sugar—1 1/2 lbs.
2 cups vinegar—1 cup
1 lbs. Celery seed—1/4 lbs.
3 tbs. mixed spices (in bag)—1 1/2 lbs.

Cook all together until thick, stirring frequently to prevent sticking.
