manufacturer, mineralogist, explorer, artist, litterateur, scholar and member of the first Board of Regents of the reorganized University of Michigan, is portrayed by the Osborns with painstaking and sympathetic detail. The authors close with this prediction: "Some day a sculptor of genius shall immortalize the epic triad—Schoolcraft—Longfellow—Hiawatha."

And when this sculptor of genius finishes his creation, he will have recreated in art the spirit of the Upper Peninsula—its blue waters, forests, mineral ranges and friendly people, the Michigan land of Hiawatha.

program in July 1942, WPB has reported. The total collected is still not sufficient to meet war demands. WPB Region 1, comprised of the New England States ranked first in pounds collected per occupied dwelling.

More Woolens For Civilians
Several million men's mackinaw and Melton work jackets, children's legging socks, blankets and other needed items of men's, women's and children's apparel will be added to the civilian supply this winter as a result of a program arrived at jointly by WPB and the War Department. Army procurements on some of the principal worsted and woolen products will be reduced by 50 percent during the last four months of this year.

Legal Aid To Soldiers

Legal aid, ranging from drawing wills to solving problems in insurance, is being provided to soldiers by more than 600 legal assistance officers in military installation in the U.S. and abroad, the War Department announced recently. At each of the legal assistance offices, commissioned officers of the Judge Advocate General's Department, Army Service Forces, who are also licensed attorneys, are on duty. During a recent period 50 typical legal assistance officers rendered 415,000 tons will be made into peanut butter—375,000 tons for civilian consumption and the remainder for the army and navy.

More Butter For Civilians
Approximately 16 million pounds of butter, in addition to the amount scheduled for August, will be available to civilians this month, the War Food Administration has announced. Previously, 40 percent of production was to be set aside for government purchase. This has been reduced to 30 percent.

Honorable Discharge Buttons

An honor discharge from the armed forces of the present war will be signified by a lapel button, the War Department has announced. Both men and women, whether officers or enlisted personnel, will be eligible to wear the button if they have an honorable discharge.

To Get Application Blanks

Members of the Armed Services of the U.S. and of the United Nations who are eligible to use War Ration Book Three, will receive application blanks from their commanding officers beginning about August 15. Processing of these military applications and issuance of War Ration Book Three will be completed between August 15 and September 10. The book will not be needed for buying rationed commodities until after that time. It is estimated that approximately 700,000 men and women in the military services will be entitled to receive War Ration Book Three.

Wool Supplies About Same

The supply of wool for civilian wearing apparel is approximately the same as last season. The increased military demands and equipment, existing wool facilities will be operated to the limit of capacity. Manufacturers are reducing the variety of colors and counts of their yarns; weavers are dropping some of the non-essential numbers from their lines. Materials produced will be familiar, popular, and practical types. No colors are prohibited.

Need Big Peanut Crop
Large increases in the production of peanut butter and peanut oil from the 1942 crop of farmers' stock peanuts, expected to approximate 1,425,000 tons—375,000 tons more than last year—are urgently needed to meet wartime requirements, says WFA. Approximately 415,000 tons will be made into peanut butter—375,000 tons for civilian consumption and the remainder for the army and navy.

To Save Paper

Between 250,000 and 300,000 pounds of paper will be saved by amended WPB conservation order M-241-A which affects all use of paper and is far more inclusive in its scope than any other paper conservation order. The paper saved, according to the WPB pulp and paper division, will be utilized to better advantage in meeting war requirements and certain civilian needs. Although the General Public may have fewer fancy articles made from paper, the real needs of the average citizen will not be seriously affected because plenty of utilitarian paper articles will be available.

Fruit, Berry Prices Increase

Formulas for establishing maximum canners' prices for seven fruits, 11 berries, fruit cocktail, and the juices and nectars of the fruits and berries have been announced by OPA. The formulas take into account higher costs to canners, and since canned fruits and berries are sold under fixed mark-ups at the wholesale and retail, it will mean increased costs to the housewife on these items.

Beefless Beef

Only steer and heifer carcasses may be accepted for boning and packaging as fresh beefless beef for our armed forces. These carcasses must grade Good or Commercial. The weight range for the steer carcasses is 450 to 1,100 pounds and for heifer carcasses from 450 to 900 pounds. The average beef carcass bonded for army beefless beef contracts will yield 70 per cent of lean meat and approximately 17 per cent of bone and 13 per cent of fat. This 70 per cent of lean meat refers to the boned meat as accepted and packed. The hindquarters usually contain 45 to 70 per cent of lean meat, the forequarters 70 to 75 per cent. About 13 per cent of the hindquarter is bone and about 21 per cent of the forequarter is bone.

Dry Homes for Chick
Even the best feed will not make hens lay their best if the poultry house itself is damp or poorly ventilated. Poultry authorities lay stress on protection against cold, rain and drafts.

Women Work in Shipyards
Women shipyard workers receive the same pay as men engaged on similar work. The work is hard, 48 hours a week being common and in some states some women are working 50 hours a week. Turnover among women workers is very low, once the women get past the training period.
