Treat Cabbage Seed
Though copper oxide is a good seed treatment for control of damping off and rotting of the seed of many garden crops, it should not be used on seeds of the cabbage family. For these, mercury or organic compounds make the best seed treatments.

Green Grass Seed Feed
Bluegrass pastures will provide more forage during the pasture year if they are not grazed until the grass is four or five inches tall. Then, the grass should be harvested by livestock as fast as it grows. Tall, dry grass is not as good feed as it was when green and succulent.
