Bakers' Yeast
Backbone of the yeast industry is bakers' yeast, generally grown in molasses. More than 248,000,000 pounds will be made in 1944, mostly for civilians. This material, containing some 70 per cent moisture, sold in bulk for about 13 cents per pound in 1939. The vitamin content of bakers' yeast is low, only about one-third that of brewers' yeast, but it is possible by changing the nutrient to produce a high-vitamin bakers' yeast.

Workin' Trend
John D. Durand, population expert of the U. S. census bureau, predicts that by 1950 over three million women who never worked before will have joined the labor force; this group, he says, will include an alarming number of women over 35 who are "likely to be a serious complication in the postwar employment problem because of the preference of most employers for younger workers."

Dry Beans
