

Postwar Coal
Research in bituminous coal combustion has resulted in at least two innovations which may be widely utilized after the war. One of these is a smokeless type stove designed for bituminous coal. Another is a new style mechanical stoker which comes under the classification of "fully automatic."

Cat-tails for Down
"Typha," the botanical name for cat-tails, is also the name being given to fluff processed from the cat-tail seed, now recognized as a highly acceptable stuffing fluff. Wisconsin farmers are scattering the seed to promote greater growth in order to cash in on the present demand for down.

BETTER PEACHES RESULT FROM IMPROVED CANNING

The fruit canning season is in full swing in the kitchens of Michigan homemakers, and just now attention is turning to the preserving of the peach crop which is coming to the market.

Miss Roberta Hershey, extension specialist in foods and nutrition at Michigan State college, emphasizes that canning does not improve a third-rate product. Runty, hard, bruised, or green peaches never make a good pack. But, if canning is carefully done, the product should be very nearly like the fresh fruit and still make winter keeping certain.

Peaches may be packed raw, Miss Hershey says, but they make a water pack and there is less surface browning if they are first simmered in syrup from 4 to 8 minutes. Avoid peaches that are soft.

If you like a professional pack, place the halves in the jar pit side down in overlapping layers. Fill pit jars with hot syrup within one-half inch of the top and fill quarts within one inch. If three-piece glass tops are used, leave one inch head space in the pits. Be sure that the peach halves are entirely covered with syrup. A light or medium syrup is generally preferred, prepared by using between 3 and 12 cups of sugar to a gallon of water.

For peaches that have been pre-cooked and packed hot, process each jar for 15 minutes in boiling water bath. For those packed raw and then covered with syrup, process for 35 minutes; or, if very soft, 25 minutes.

Be sure to seal only partially before processing, and then complete the seal after the processing period is over, using the directions given by the manufacturer of the jars.

They attend classes four hours a day for academic education and another four hours daily for vocational training that is designed to provide them with a useful vocation for the "free world."

Since last November 15, when the camp opened, Cassidy Lake had not experienced one fist fight. The honor system is supreme.

Last spring the boys asked Lieutenant Parrish, whose military title comes from twelve years' service in the United States army, for permission to arrange a Mother's Day program.

"But don't go near the 'wreck' building (recreation)," the boys pleaded. "We want to surprise you."

High-warden Warden Jackson was there. Imagine this, from a bunch of lads who had troubled their mothers no end: A church choir? Singing lustily in the first row, side by side, were a Catholic, Protestant and a Mexican.

The church choir has given concerts in Chelsea and surrounding towns. The church ladies cooperate, too, with ice cream and cake. Well—and why not?

What to do with the juveniles delinquents—six lads who have been assigned to the camp by Michigan probate judges, as part of the state's new delinquent youth program—is Lieutenant Parrish's current problem.

And here, strangely enough, is an unexpected contrast. The 13 inmates from Jackson represent about one and one-half per cent of the state prison's population. They are carefully selected for good behavior.

Most of the juveniles have long police records—some longer than records of first offenders at the prison. No screening has been done; they are boys in the raw. About the most then can be said of one lad, who is the by-product of a mate swapping spree in the Thumb a few years ago, is this: "A pair of pants walking around." Cassidy Lake is a challenge to Michigan. We believe it will make good.

Asbestos Products
Asbestos, a rock which can be reduced to fiber form, becomes rougher and harder the older it gets. Unaffected by either fire or weather, this material is combined with portland cement in the manufacture of asbestos cement shingles, sidings and building board. Despite extensive demands by the armed forces, these materials are still available to home owners for repair work.

Furnaces Making Steel
Nearly 1,000 open hearth steel furnaces with capacities from 10 to 40 tons are producing steel for the war. In addition, steel is made in 185 electric arc furnaces, 38 electric and nine crucible furnaces.

simmer-cooking with GAS

Can save you MONEY . . .
Give you MORE nutritious foods . . . and SAVE GAS for war production!

Use your Gas range and its simmer-save cooking flame to reduce your use of Gas and cook more nutritious foods. Today it is extra important to get every bit of nutritive value from the foods you are able to buy.

If you do not have the simmer-save feature, you can still get good results by turning your flame low.

Simmer-cooking, with a low blue flame, preserves the necessary vitamins and minerals, which you often are cooked away. It produces more palatable and better-tasting foods. Like the low-temperature method of roasting meats, which is afforded you by your modern Gas range, simmer-cooking is a boon to women who want to give their families every possible value in foods.

For "Watertight" cooking, recognized as one of the best methods to retain vitamins and minerals, use only sufficient water to cover well the bottom of a covered utensil. Turn Gas on full until steam appears. When steam appears, turn flame to simmer position and cook only until tender, no longer. Serve vegetables immediately, as over-cooking impairs flavor, texture, color, and destroys vitamins. Drain liquids taken from vegetables to use as sauces, vegetable cocktails, gravies and soups; they contain flavor and valuable food elements.

Other ways to economize in cooking:

1. Make sure that all burners on your Gas range are operating at their top efficiency. Keep burners clean. No preheating is necessary. Gas produces maximum heat instantly.
2. Turn on top burner ONLY when ready to place a utensil over it to start food cooking; do not turn on a burner, then walk across the kitchen to get a saucepan.
3. DO NOT heat two quarts of water when you need only a pint or a cupful. Heat only what is needed at the moment.
4. If your range has one giant burner, use it for large utensils of food and once boiling begins, turn this burner to simmer!
5. Turn off all burners as soon as you have finished using them — and this includes the oven burner when baking is ended and foods taken from the oven.

Because of the present critical tire shortage...

Please DON'T TRAVEL OVER LABOR DAY!

Hundreds of buses needed in war effort are today standing idle due to lack of tires

In the whole period of the war this Labor Day will be the most critical for transportation. Intercity buses simply cannot carry all the people who will need or want to travel — because hundreds of these buses are temporarily standing idle, without tires.

Your help is needed in meeting this crisis. Even if your Labor Day trip is highly essential, postpone it a few days if you possibly can. If you must go, please be prepared for possible delays and unavoidable crowding.

Nothing would give us greater pleasure than to serve you now — but the urgent needs of war come first. We know you will understand and cooperate as you have always done. We feel sure that it won't be long until all our buses are back in service. With a proud war record behind them, and an urgent job of transporting manpower still ahead, America's buses must be kept rolling!
