The Kind of Boys . . .

we raise today — are the kind of men we will have tomorrow.

Upon these words this organization was founded and upon these words it grew. America became conscious of its obligation to the boys. It resolved to set a pattern of life that would lead to a helpful, useful, progressive America. An organization pledged to build by helping boys, boys who tomorrow would be men.

The founders of this organization established an ideal, a set of principles, that if practiced would make every boy conscious of his responsibility to his country, to his neighbor and to himself. A plan was laid out whereby every boy would learn to use his hands and his mind together, thus making him useful. He was to be taught to be alert, aggressive, open minded, thus making for leadership and a more progressive America.

On a simple ideal, and a deep rooted desire to be of service, the Boy Scouts of America was organized. That was 36 years ago.

American boys, Scout leaders and interested citizens have made the Boy Scouts of America a working symbol of democracy. Here is a gigantic youth movement designed to build, designed to "help others at all times." Boys pledged to keep themselves "physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight." Boys, who in war or peace, learn to love, not to hate — learn to trust, not to deceive.

Farmington Boy Scouts of Troop 45 and Bond School Troop 48 join with nearly two million Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts, Senior Scouts and their leaders throughout America, in commemoration of the 36th Anniversary of Boy Scout Week, February 8 to 14.

Farmington is proud of you, and grateful for the many fine contributions you have made both for the community and for yourselves. Your hard work in connection with the numerous war projects was invaluable to your country. You will carry on with that same spirit in peace.

It is to you the boys of today — that we look for the leaders of tomorrow.

Farmington Has Opened . . .

the door once more, and extended a helping hand.

You have put the Victory Clothing Drive over the top. You have strengthened the statement "We can always depend on Farmington."

For the past few years you have been called upon on time after time to support this drive, and aid this campaign. Your answer has been material results.

By contributing to the Victory Clothing Drive, you have given thousands of war battered peoples one of the simple necessities of life. But, more important, you have re-established in them a new faith. You have shown them that someone cares, someone is interested enough in their future, to contribute to their well being.

If we are to have real understanding throughout the world, we must contribute. It must come from the people of the United States, not the government, but individual people like you.

It is a volunteer project and you have gone out of your way to help. You have opened the door, you have put Farmington over the top once more, and you have given new hope to a wandering, desolate people.

Local High Teams Take Doubleheader

The two High School basketball teams were victorious again last Friday night when they won a double header from Northville. The girls game was the best staged on the local floor this season. Children's Ears Frozen On Way To School Bus

"What Price Education" is probably the phrase that was running through the minds of Ruth Smith and Douglas MacArthur of Farmington as they entered the Farmington school Tuesday morning. Ole Man Winter, with his twelve-below-zero breath extracted the price of frozen ears, which the children suffered on the way to meet the school bus from their respective homes.

"Human Icicle" Huge Blister, Toll Of Fire

What Farmington volunteer firemen endure in their service to the community is the experience of two members of the force at the former Methodist Children's Home a few days ago. Not always or even frequently are there such occurrences, but the records of recent years show sufficiently numerous injuries to the volunteers to make clear that theirs is not an easy type of community service.

"Real wealth rather than money is the basis of our American economy," he said.

"The real wealth of a nation is its forests, its agricultural land, its reservoirs of oil, its mines, its rivers and lakes, the health and intelligence and capacity for work of its people."

"When these are gone or even largely exhausted, we shall cease to be a nation of any wealth, importance of power, or we shall be forced into the precarious banking-process economy of a nation like Great Britain which buys its raw materials and finds its markets outside the nation."

BITS OF THIS AND THAT

By ELMER T. POCKINGTON

A REASON FOR "THE HOPE THAT IS WITHIN YOU"

You say you will not live beyond That mark in time called Death: You say that you will cease to live When stops your mortal breath;

You say "No one has ever returned, — Nobody ever knew" — And YOU can only hold to that Which has been proven true. I now expect that I shall see To-morrow come and go

But vainly would I search for PROOF, — I just BELIEVE it's so. And so, since I so little know About one day ahead But still believe that day will come, — It never shall be said That I too, doubt a future life Because no proof is mine;

Instead I'll trust that inborn hope And think its source Divine. Published by permission of the author All Rights Reserved
