AIP, Minus Wallace, To Be On May 16 Ballot

By KATHY MORAN

In addition to the two major parties, the American Independent Party will have members running for precinct delegate in the May 16 election.

AIP is the only minority party active in Observerland which elects delegates to its county convention. Both the Socialist Workers Party and the Human Rights Party invite their entire memberships to their conventions.

AIP is also eligible to have a presidential candidate on the presidential preference ballot. But due to "miscommunication," it was not able to name a candidate in time, according to Mrs. Josephine Chapman, AIP Wayne County election chairman.

Mrs. Chapman said the party was informed it was not eligible to have a presidential candidate on the ballot and didn't find out it was eligible until the deadline had passed. The primary law states that parties whose 1968 presidential candidate received more than five per cent of the nationwide vote are eligible for the ballot.

AIP's 1968 candidate George Wallace, Alabama governor, received a larger percentage of the vote, so AIP was eligible. However, the deadline for getting candidates on the eligibility list was March 7.

BOTH MRS. CHAPMAN and Farmington Chairman Andrew Sroka said AIP will have candidates running for precinct delegate, but neither could estimate how many. The candidates will run uncommitted. At an April 15th meeting of the party's state central committee, a date for the county conventions will be set.

Though the party first organized around Wallace's campaign in 1968, AIP won't formally endorse him in this election since he is running as a Democratic candidate.

Mrs. Chapman said that many of the party members are endorsing Wallace individually.

A YOUTH SEGMENT of the party has formed the "Young Americans for Wallace" which will formally organize in Oakland County this week. John Hawkins of Bloomfield Hills, who is active in the group, said that after it is organized they will encourage young people to run for precinct delegate committed to Wallace.

"It's their future," Hawkins said.

Debbie Deagan of the Socialist Workers Party said the party will be active during the primary wherever it can have the opportunity to debate presidential candidates and "make our existence known."

Delegates must file by March 24 to get on the ballot.

Citizens Group Can't Agree On C'ville Lines

A citizens committee formed by the Clarenceville Board of Education to study the feasibility of altering that district's elementary schools boundary lines told the board members Thursday night that they must draw up their own plan and implement it.

In suggesting two of its own plans for changing elementary school enrollment areas to increase the size of Westbrook Elementary School, the Citizens Committee to Study the Feasibility of Altering Elementary School Boundaries also told the board that a plan proposed by the board a year ago was equally as acceptable.

HAROLD WEISS, chairman of the committee, told the Clarenceville board Thursday that "I don't think any committee of parents will come up with a solution to this problem; therefore, I believe that the board of education should come up with a plan and carry it out.

"When the committee first met, I tried to impress the members of the importance of thinking district-wide and to try to keep our personalities out of our thoughts, but I see now that this was impossible," Weiss said.

"No matter how we feel, the foremost thought as parents are your own children, and some of our members did not want their children bussed to another school."

The committee's two plans would shift either 183 or 114 elementary students from other schools in the district to Westbrook where the current enrollment of 180 comprises only one sequence of grade levels from kindergarten through sixth grade.

The district's other three elementary schools each have more than 600 students and several sequences of grade levels.

Weiss said none of the committee's suggestions was unanimous. He said the committee was also asked about a proposal to close Westbrook and another plan to leave present boundaries in effect. Both proposals were rejected.

The board of education accepted the report and will take it under advisement. Supt. David B. McDowell said the board probably would not take up the boundaries issue until this summer.

OR Recorder Said 'Improved'

The Orchard Ridge newspaper, Recorder, has made a "tremendous improvement" since being put on probation by the Oakland Community College trustees in January, according to Dean of Students Don Nichols.

"We feel it has made a tremendous improvement," Nichols said. "It is very much more professional."

After the paper was put on probation, the Publications Board of the Farmington campus created a student-faculty ad hoc committee to review the paper and come up with recommendations.

NICHOLS SAID the recommendations ranged from replacing the entire newspaper staff to abolishing use of four-letter words and "lewd and indecent" language. It also recommended that some of the staff be paid so they would be more responsible. Currently the staff is entirely voluntary.

Editor John Smith will respond to the recommendations this week in a meeting of the Publications Board, which has three faculty and four student members. Nichols heads the board.

Smith said the paper has cut down on use of four-letter words except when in context of a story.

Band Backers Meet Tonight

Band Parents and Friends Club will hold a Chinese auction at 8 this evening (March 16) in the band room in Clarenceville High School.

WSU Sets Extension

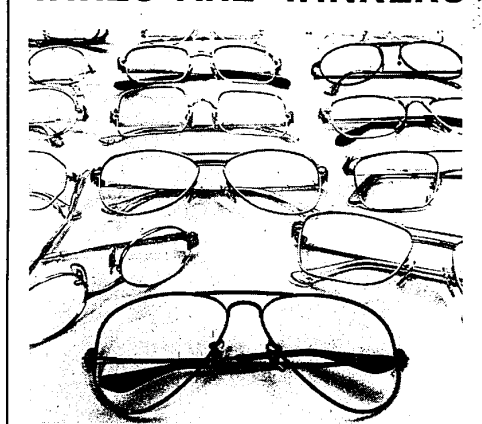

Students may register for the spring quarter courses to be offered by Wayne State University through its Division of Urban Extension in Dearborn, Detroit, Livonia and Southfield, among other places.

Courses have been scheduled for the College of Education, College of Engineering, College of Liberal Arts, Montclair College and the School of Business Administration. Quarter starts April 3 and students are asked to register two weeks before classes begin. Late registrants may find classes closed and, after March 29, will be charged a late fee of $10, after the second week of classes $25.
