Uncle Sam Says

Down in Broad Street and Nassau Street, New York, I talked with big finance men. They could buy big long term bonds but they buy Savings Bonds like Joe, the miner, and Hal, the bus driver. They look ahead and see them meeting doctor's bills, putting a new roof on the garage and getting that car their mother has always wanted. Yes, Wall Street likes bonds. U.S. Treasury Department ordinances require dead fowl and such refuse to be buried and not allowed to rot on the premises, contaminating all the surrounding neighborhood. In one section citizens are in a constant state of exasperation because of laws being fairly littered with decaying carcasses dragged home by domestic pets.

The Clinton Aults with a friend on Tuesday plighted at Cass Benton Saturday evening.

Mrs. Edwin L. Johnson and children from over on Claris, were luncheon guests of Mrs. Johnson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Ault. The Johnsons left Saturday for a week's vacation at one of the lakes in northern Michigan. Forrest Ault, of Mayfield Ave., accompanied them.

Friends of Mrs. Blanche Rice Smith gathered at her home on Hubbard Ave., Wednesday evening and extended birthday congratulations. There were all the customary features of such a celebration.

Mrs. J. W. Ault or "Grandma Ault," as she is commonly known, was 90 years old last Thursday and a constant stream of friends and neighbors kept stopping by at the little house to extend sincere good wishes to the gracious lady who was, fairly, shagwed with cards and gifts.

Sons and daughters of Mrs. Ault had their own special celebration on Wednesday night when they presented her with a useful lawn-couch.
