CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT
PROPOSAL NO. 1
Which Authorizes The State To Continue To Establish Public Airports?
HERE ARE STATEMENTS OTHERS HAVE MADE
GOVERNOR KELLY SAYS:
"I sincerely hope that this Amendment will be approved in order that the State of Michigan be enabled to meet the challenge of the Air Age."
GOVERNMENTAL CANDIDATE
KIM SUGER SAYS:
"This is an event, let there be no question in the mind of anyone regarding my stand on Proposal No. One. I am definitely and wholeheartedly for it."
AMERICAN LEGION AVIATION COMMITTEE
CHAIRMAN THOMAS E. WALSH SAYS:
"I feel confident the voters of Michigan will give their approval to Constitutional Amendment Proposal No. One which is in line with aviation progress in Michigan."
MICHIGAN FARM BUREAU MANAGER
CLARE BRYANT SAYS:
"Approval of Amendment Number One vitally concerns farmers. Aviation for business trips, carrying mail, the enforcement of laws, and the marketing of surplus products is vital to agriculture. Vote Yes on Amendment Number One."
HUNDREDS OF STATE-WIDE ORGANIZATIONS HAVE PUBLICLY ENDORSED THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT PROPOSAL NUMBER ONE — YOU CAN'T GO WRONG WITH A YES VOTE.

Frozen milk, cream, butter, cheese, fruitcakes, bread, cookies, meat, cooked meats and combinations of meats with vegetables should be thawed gradually in a cool place, then use as if they had not been frozen. The readjustment of moisture and fats, in most of these products, takes place satisfactorily if thawing is done gradually.
Practical Hangers
Wooden or plastic hangers for clothing are better than wire or cardboard hangers. They do not rust in damp weather so do metal hangers, nor do they become limp as do cardboard hangers.

study, first-hand, the rise and fall of democracy in Germany under the Weimar republic. It so happened that in this obscure little book, the Germans belonged to western civilization but ever since 1870 they grew under what amounted to a military dictatorship in a highly disciplined society, a rigid class system with complete subordination to authority. In these respects Japan is similar.
Like Germany, after World War I, Japan has suffered a crushing defeat, has disposed an emperor, has absolutely no training in democratic organization or democratic action, no experience in parliamentary government as we know it. Political parties organized in the sense that we know them were utterly strange to both nations, and both peoples lived under an economy and a society based on the support, morally and materially, of a huge army and navy.
"These are some of the difficulties which the Weimar republic faced and the young Japanese democracy is facing. Strong anti-democratic influences represented by big business and the aristocracy of blood and uniform, common to Japan and Germany, are at least latent in the former.
But perhaps the greatest parallel danger in Japan today is the thing that eventually destroyed the Weimar republic — is the

NAVY BOOSTS ELECTRONICS

Navy Day, 1946, heralds a new step forward in the United States Navy's expansion of its electronic development program, which is designed to equip it as a Guardian in Peace, just as electronic progress enabled it to emerge a Victor in War. The Bureau of Naval Personnel has announced that, beginning November 4, 1946, the basic course of Electronics Technicians' Mate and Aviation Electronics Technicians' Mate will be broadened from 22 to 42 weeks under a program aimed at filling 7000 billets now open in these ratings. There are more than 3,700 different types of modern, complex electronic equipment aboard ships of the Fleet, in Navy plants and at shore stations. economic situation produced by inflation. Many students of history feel that Hitler never would have gotten away from a start in Germany if it had not been for the chaotic condition caused by the terrible inflation.
Inflation today is one of Japan's greatest problems.
ECONOMIC CHAOS BREDS CONTROLS
It is quite possible that the Weimar republic, even under the best conditions and with the material and moral assistance of the democratic nations (which it did not get) never would have succeeded. On the other hand, it never had a fair trial, for economic chaos forced the dictatorship. There was no time to establish in the minds of the people or in the province of government, a real, solidly built democratic philosophy. It is inconceivable that without a long period of education the Japanese can evolve politically to the point which the Germans never reached. America's greatest bulwark of democracy is conceded to be the public school.
A whole new curriculum must be laid down for the Japanese. At present the shortage of books is serious. The old books are, of course, almost useless. There is likewise a shortage of trained teachers.
Another factor essential to the growth of a democratic government is security, without which individual effort cannot flourish. Today in Japan no Japanese worker is sure that his wage in
