WASHINGTON DIGEST

(Continued From Page Two), and the Senate again is confronted with job competition the government will be obliged to furnish the White Man's learning in larger doses and with fewer interruptions.

In any case neither property nor education has as yet caused the Senate to complain about his housing situation. A few modern houses built on one reservation were left unoccupied, except for one porch. There is nothing wrong with a Seminole chieftain. A chieftain really ought to be translated "room" instead of "house," since there are as many separate chieftains as required for each family. They are of two different types, one for cooking and one for sleeping and living. They consist of a thick palm-fan roof with low-hanging "eaves" supported on poles and rafters. There are no walls in the living but there is a platform a couple feet off the ground and usually a bunk-like bench which can be used for the women as a work table, as well as for sleeping.

These dwellings are airy all right and would be damp during a long sub-tropical rainstorm if it were not for supplementary tarpaulin.

NOW EAT FOOD OF WHITE MAN

What the White Man calls progress has done more to affect the eating habits of the Seminole than our cultural activities have affected his viewpoint. Draining and lumbering in the Everglades have sharply reduced food sources - dried cress and ponds, cutting timber and forest fires have killed off wildlife. But the accessibility of the grocery store has tended to make up with bakers' bread, beef, coffee, sugar, syrup and canned fruits.

Michigan Mirror

 Senator G. Elwood Bonine of Vandalla has introduced a bill which would solve the problem of how to finance the $750,000 veterans' bonus. Bonine's measure would earmark three mills of the 15-mill property tax for the bonus. It would produce around $20,000,000 each year based on present valuations. This is about enough to cover the cost of interest and bond retirement. . . .

Senator Harold D. Tripp of Allegan would whittle down the prospective deficit by returning to the state the liquor license fee rebates which are now given to cities and villages for enforcement of liquor laws. . . .

Other schemes to whittle down the deficit would put the state-supported colleges in one school district and thereby make them eligible for state school aid; would dip into the $50,000,000 veterans' trust fund to help finance the $270,000,000 veterans' bonus. All these have the weakness in that they only alleviate the problem; they do not solve it.

It is likely that the financial problem will come to a head soon and that legislative leaders, together with the governor and state officials, may arrive at some conclusion.

With the financial problem at the top of his list, Governor Sigler has been disturbed by recent developments which have focused public attention on the personal needs of the governor and his family.

We refer to the so-called "governor's mansion", a high-faluting title for what would be an official "white house" in Ferris Park for the governor, his family and a staff of servants including the governor's bodyguard who is assigned annually by the Michigan State Police.

The "mansion" idea is not Sigler's creation. It popped up in 1946 when the state legislature decided that the State of Michigan should provide suitable housing facilities and business offices for the governor and his family and others who are needed to maintain the building.

The state board of auditors in 1946 engaged Aiden Dow, famous Michigan architect. Dow's plans were submitted to the board shortly after January 1, thereby focusing public's attention on the whole matter. . . .

The governor is a public figure of major importance; his job does not end daily at 5 p.m.; the office imposes upon him unusual responsibilities and duties. . . .

The proposed official "white house" at Lansing would include police offices where the governor could attend the official business in evening hours; several apartments to house the governor's bodyguard, members of the staff and their families - all of whom are needed to prepare meals, tidy up the rooms, tend to the fire, and otherwise be on hand for a variety of needs including state official functions.

We recall hearing Mrs. Harry F. Kelly tell about the 32-person staff which the State of New York provides at the residence of Governor Thomas E. Dewey, who, incidentally, was re-elected in November by a smashing majority. Mrs. Kelly felt that such a staff should be under civil service and that the wife of the governor should be relieved of the chores of presiding over brooms and pans.

By contrast to the New York official residence, the Michigan plan is fairly modest. It is extremely unlikely that more than $750,000 (even at today's highly inflated costs) would be needed. . . .

When we asked Governor Sigler about the "mansion", he expressed himself with considerable feeling. He didn't approve of the idea of a "mansion". He was living in a small apartment at a Lansing hotel and the governor's term, as everyone knows is for two years only. "There are more important things before me," he said, wearily. It was already 6 o'clock then, and many members of the executive staff had left for the day.

All of which brings us right back to where we started. How can the State of Michigan avert new taxes or a whopping big deficit? That is the top issue.

Peeling Potatoes
 If potatoes are to be peeled, the peeling should be delayed as long as possible. If they must be prepared ahead of time, it will help to keep them in salted water.

There is no legal obligation for a woman to assume her husband's name. Taking the husband's name is entirely a matter of custom, not of law.
