Just A Dream . . .

or is it real! Honest to goodness grass, live trees, warm sun, or is it — yes, just a dream. And yet — it might come true.

Yes, little girl, it might come true, because there are people in the world who see you there, and want to help. You see they dream, too — of happy faces, of running, jumping, laughing children. They see you there, your withered legs, your starey eyes. Many of them can't know just how you feel. But they want to help.

They know you are not asking for much, just a chance. A little boost, that will make you useful and happy in the years ahead. You're just a little girl now with a whole life spread before you. It's not going to be easy, but you're going to get some help. You and that little fella next to you can do the job.

There are a lot of people right here in Farmington that know you are there, and they aren't going to forget you. They are going to buy and use Easter Seals.

You and your little crippled friends will feel the green grass under your feet. You will feel the warm sun and see live trees, because we have heard of your dream.

We will make it real!

A Little Common Sense . . .

plus a good mixture of idealism is going a long ways towards impressing on the minds of all nations that the United States has a foreign policy and it intends to stick to it!

The day of pushing our heads down in the sand is over. We have a stake in the future world, which is now being formed. The badly mauled word "isolationism" is no longer accepted by the majority of the people. True, we still have a few extremists who believe that embassies and ambassadors are our foreign policy and this is where it should begin and end. Fortunately history and the rapid changing of events is gradually thinning the ranks of these extremists.

Our foreign policy drawn from the minds of men — lawyers, farmers, businessmen, Republicans and Democrats — is the voice of the majority. It has the backing of the American people. There are some who believe it too hard — some not hard enough. One fact still remains — it is our policy. It is sound and it is being carried out by one of America's most capable leaders, General George C. Marshall.

In spite of differences in types of government, in ways of speaking, in histories and traditions, one common fact remains — right is right. This every country knows, every man regardless of nationality, understands. Upon this one common ground every nation, large or small, can speak. Some governments torn by personalities and political cliques, or dominated by foreign influences, do not want to recognize this fundamental ideal.

Our foreign policy is not one of domination. It doesn't call for the forcing of a democratic type of government on all nations. It does naturally contain many of the principles and ideals of democracy. However, it is not the policy of the State Department to cram our form of government down the throats of our smaller neighbors. If it had been, there would be more democracies in Central and South America. It is, rather, to fight against such domination by force.

The United States must, as a large and powerful nation, firmly stand on the ideal of every country to work out its problems free of coercion and force. It must, with clear cut firmness, impress all nations with the fact that the future peace of the world is dependent upon honesty, respect and understanding.
