"HEAVENS TO BETSY..."

"HOW CAN INVISIBLE LIGHT MAKE MEAT TASTE BETTER?"

"WHY IS IT EASY, MA'AM," chorled the butcher. "These new germ-killing lamps in our refrigerator stop bacteria cold—thanks to invisible ultraviolet rays... and that means less waste and more taste for your money!"

For years, you see, butchers have had a difficult problem in keeping meat both pure and fresh. Refrigeration, of course, is partially the answer. Refrigeration will slow up the growth of mold and bacteria to almost nothing—will keep meat practically 100% pure. But refrigeration alone cannot always keep meat from drying out. And when meat does dry out, it loses its natural flavor, juiciness and color.

Now, however, the germ-killing lamp, properly installed, makes it possible to increase the temperature and humidity in butcher shop refrigerators. That's because its invisible ultraviolet rays destroy airborne bacteria before the meat is contaminated.

The result? Sanitary, sweet-smelling meat storage for one thing. Less chance of meat spoilage in your own refrigerator, too, because your purchases are healthfully pure and—at the same time—juicier, tastier, more flavorful... not shrunken, discolored or dehydrated.

The germ-killing lamp is not brand-new. For some years it has been used—in many ways and with varying results—to fight airborne bacteria.

During these years, scientists and engineers made a thorough study of the lamp to determine exactly how best it could be used. As a result of this research, it is now possible for every meat market in southeastern Michigan to get the maximum benefit from these lamps—cheaply. A butcher need not know how to compute the required number of lamps—need not be an expert on bacteria counts or ultraviolet radiation. For Edison specialists can study his problem and give him specific recommendations.

There's no charge for this accurate, impartial advice. It's another example of how Edison service can help Edison customers get the most from all the electricity they buy.

BUTCHERS ARE BEAMING!

Naturally. Their new germ-killing lamps save them both meat and money. Less spoilage... no more time and trouble in eliminating discolored meat.

P.S. The customers like them, too! There's less waste, more taste and more value for their money!
