Geometry Students Become Novice Slueths

Dosens of Ellery Queens were discovered last week in the plans of geometry classes. Miss Lingo, plane geometry teacher, was surprised at the returns of an assignment to write a mystery story using geometry in some way. Some of the best stories were written by Velma Goers, Lore Laidig, John Pettibone, and Eliza Nystrom. M. E.

Let's Be Courteous

One of the first steps in our program for courtesy should be a respect for other people's belongings. This phase of the program could be carried out to advantage in the gym at noon. Have you ever put your coat carefully over the bleacher wall, danced, and returned only to find instead of the brown, black or green coat you left there a mass of tattered gray? Until checking space is allotted, this is the only logical place to put wraps. Do you think we should be as courteous in action as we are in our homes? This is only a common courtesy and requires no effort — simply a practice of the Golden Rule. N. T.

EDITORIAL

Underclassmen, get on the ball before it is too late. Often high school underclassmen who realize how much more advanced upperclassmen are than they, abide by all decisions that they make, regardless of their standards. Instead, they also should make suggestions for improvements and not be too afraid of criticism. The students who get an early start in all high school fields are the ones who will be the leaders and reap the profits. Advancement academically, athletically, and socially is gained largely through preparation. Younger boys may think that in athletics they don't stand a chance. It is true in most cases that they don't begin varsity competition until the sophomore or junior year when their abilities and bodies have been trained and matured. The training will prove beneficial whether one plays or not. It is wise to start studying hard when beginning high school. It helps to carry on in your following years. It will result in better scholastic averages, high ratings at graduation time, and more satisfactory college applications or job recommendations. Do not hesitate to volunteer services. Two of the biggest mistakes that can be made are (1) to put things off and (2) to lack confidence. With these mental handicaps you will make no progress. Begin now to put forth greater effort for a more profitable future. B. A.

MISS RUTH BACON IS MARRIED TO WYANDOTTE MAN

The First Congregational Church of Wyandotte was the scene of an impressive candlelight wedding ceremony Thursday evening, April 3, at 6:15 p.m., uniting Ruth L. Bacon, daughter of Mrs. Alice M. Bacon of Albion, and Herkert E. Beaubien, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Beaubien of Wyandotte, in marriage. The double ring ceremony was read by the Rev. H. Norman Jackson, pastor of the church. Traditional wedding music was played by Miss Eleanor Bennick. The bride couple was attended by the brother-in-law and sister of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund W. Loselle of Wyandotte. The bride chose a gold gabardine suit with black accessories for her wedding. Her corsage was of tall-tann roses. Mrs. Loselle wore a dusty pink suit with black accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses. Mrs. Bacon wore navy blue with matching accessories for her daughter's wedding, while Mrs. Beaubien chose black print for the occasion. Their corsages were of white carnations. Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Loselle on Catalpa Street in Wyandotte. Mrs. Beaubien is the music teacher at the Garfield and McFarland Schools in Wyandotte, and Mr. Beaubien is with Murray Corporation in Ecorse. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Beaubien will be at home at 23 Walnut Street, Wyandotte. Mrs. Beaubien is a former teacher in the Farmington Schools, having taught here from 1941 to 1943.

Baseball Club Is Shaping Up

This week's baseball practice has brought out much hidden talent. The Falcons' theme this year will be speed and head work. From all indications they will have good fielding and a good pitching staff. With lots of hard work the boys will play heads up ball when they take the field against Pontiac on April 22. The game will be played at Pontiac.

The track team is also planning on a successful season with many returning veterans. The boys are looking forward to taking three league championships in the first year of Inter-Lakes Conference competition. R. B.
