Mace of the Government
The mace is the only visible symbol of government authority in the United States. It is an institution borrowed from the British parliament and goes back to the "Mace" of Republican Rome—the bundle of rods and an ax which was carried by the lictors who attended each Roman magistrate as he held court and administered justice. From this very practical instrument—the rods for administering whippings and the ax for beheading—the "Mace" developed and evolved into a symbol known as the mace. This symbol was adopted by the house of representatives, April 14, 1788. There is no mace in the senate.

Santa Fe Trail Covered
Francisco Vasquez de Coronado, Spanish explorer, was the first European to pass over any considerable part of the Santa Fe Trail.
He followed the Arkansas river on his way back from unprofitable trip to Quivira in 1541.

Wool—World Industry
Since the beginning of recorded history wool has been an important part of man's material wealth. The flocks and herds of the early Israelites are mentioned in the Bible and the use of this product of the sheep goes back beyond the mist of antiquity. But, until the last half century, difficulties in transportation and communications prevented the development of a world wool market although in the Middle Ages a thriving trade had developed among the wool staplers of England and the skilled artisans of the Low lands. Today probably 3,750 million pounds of wool are produced annually throughout the world. United States production is a little less than 500 million pounds.

Depopulated Countries
Before the fall of the Western Roman Empire, in 476 A.D., the agricultural regions of Italy and the provinces were nearly depopulated.
Part of the depopulation was due to low birth rate and the rest to abandonment of the land by its cultivators. Efforts were made to stem the trend, by paying bounties to parents for each new birth and by passing a law binding both the slaves and the free tenants to the land, thus making them serfs. The feudal serf. All efforts failed, however; the exhausted, eroded soil simply could not support the population and the terrible weight of imperial taxation.

The Cracker State
The motto of Georgia is "Wisdom, Justice and Moderation." It's fewer is the Cherokee rose and its unofficial bird, the brown thrasher.
