S. C. TRIES NEW RULES FOR SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT

That confusion may be avoided in questioning witnesses, a prosecuting attorney will take office at the next court session on Friday, February 6. In the Council meeting John Pettibone was chosen for the position.

According to Lee Lathrup, Student Council president, the first session of the court was successful.

A new ruling made by the Council concerns organizations selling in the cafeteria at school activities. Each group is responsible for keeping the food, except candy, from being taken out of the cafeteria. Also the room is to be left in the same condition in which it was found. On request Mr. Harrison will inspect the room to verify that it is clean. If organizations do not comply with the rule, a five dollar fine will be imposed. There will be a sign over the door to inform strangers of the rule concerning food.

Ad Attracts Times Columnist

A little human psychology in advertising does the trick. This ad was used recently by Ford Malmgren, the father of Freshman on Golf Malmgren. Vera Brown, of the Detroit Times, was also interested in the advertisement and called the Malmgrens to ask permission to comment upon it in her week end column.

Lead Still Tied In Bowling League

The Pin Kings and Wildcats each won four points, and are still deadlocked with 29 points. The Pin Kings have lead the league from the beginning of the season, but the Wildcats have improved fast and have caught up with them.

Joe Latham had the high game with 222 and high series with 590. Other bowlers that had 200 games were: Stanley Chavay, 221, Jim Dietrich, 211, and Bill Goers, 202.

Britain a Small Island
Greenland leads all islands in size, having an area of 837,330 square miles. Second in size is New Guinea with an area of 303,000 square miles. Great Britain, the world's seventh largest island, has only 85,000 square miles of area.

Small Type Cattle
Bred in Ireland from remotest times, Kerry cattle are a small, hardy and economical type. Few are to be found in America.

EDITORIAL

Reflections On India

It is hard to predict so soon what effect the death of Mahatma Gandhi may have upon the life of India. It is possible that the tremendous influence which his life has had upon the masses of India's people will remain, or ever grow, so as to mold the future trend of the nation. On the other hand, it is equally possible that his removal from the religious and political life of the nation may give an impetus to the growth of the influence of the more radical party in India. If this should occur, rioting and bloodshed will probably grow in intensity for a long time to come.

India has lost a good statesman whose love for his country was pure and unselfish and who used his influence always for what he believed to be the best interest of his beloved country.

This guest editorial was written by Miss M. Elsie Barnard, commercial teacher, who spent five and a half years in India and who has a deep affection and sympathy for India and her people. Her comments are based on the observations she made during her stay there.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS DEPT. FEATURES SPORTS EQUIPMENT

Snow, snow and more snow! The weather is having its effect on everybody, even the boys in shop.

In connection with the winter sports the fellows are repairing such equipment as toboggans and skis.

In the eighth grade group Robert Wallace and Robert Siseland are working on a bobbed, which they will share in the winter fun. John Mayville and Robert Hutton are also working on a sled.

More advanced in shop, James Van Every is making a pair of snow shoes, and Donald Howard is busy with a pair of skis. P.A.E.
