Rev. Lester Kinsolving's Religion Update

The successful defense of Navy Chaplain Andrew Jensen, especially in a unprecedented court-martial for alleged adultery in Jacksonville, Fla., cost more than $15,000 for necessary investigations and two civilian attorneys. (Jensen was aware that a reported 95 per cent of all military court-martials result in convictions).

The locally organized Chaplain Jensen Defense Fund (P.O. Box 6022, Jacksonville, 32221) has raised $2,800, but Jensen's denomination, the American Baptist Convention, has claimed that this amount should be paid by the Navy. And unless the Navy does so - as well as providing realistic guarantees that Jensen will not be subjected to discrimination in promotion or assignments - the Baptists will furnish no more chaplains to the Navy.

Similar action - which could deplete the Navy Chaplain Corps - was taken by 40 or more Protestant denominations whose chaplaincy boards are members of the General Commission on Chaplains and Armed Forces Personnel, which is scheduled to discuss the Jensen case with the Navy Department in Washington on May 1.

THE NAVY'S METHODS in prosecuting Chaplain Jensen reek on a number of counts, primarily on the incredible fact that his career officer with 17 years of unblemished service was brought to general court-martial on the strength of affidavits filed by two self-confessed adulteresses.

Laura Gudbranson and Mary Ann Curran, wives of naval officers at Cecil Naval Air Station here, testified that they had sexual relations with the Chaplain on 22 occasions. Even were this testimony true - and it was torn apart in cross examination - just how many times does an officer's "body" have to be "seduced" before her conscience overcomes her glands enough to report a court-martial offense?

And since there was no mention of rape, why was Chaplain Jensen threatened with possible imprisonment?

the strength of the affidavits of two self-proclaimed adulteresses - his alleged partners in crime who continue resident on U.S. naval bases?

AMONG FURTHER compelling questions on this scandal:

- Why was Chaplain Jensen's report about wife-swapping on the base accepted by the trial court but not permitted to be featured in testimony? Why also, as Chaplain Jensen vividly recalls, were two-thirds of his defense witnesses denied the right to testify - while those who did testify were compelled to supply the substance of their testimony in advance of the trial?

- Why was Chaplain Jensen immediately replaced as senior Protestant chaplain by the former assistant chaplain, Southern Baptist Holt Swan? Chaplain Swan told his wife that he had not obtained affidavits from either of the two accusing women - and that he could not recall ever having been reprimanded by Jensen.

- Why was Chaplain Jensen immediately replaced as senior Protestant chaplain by the former assistant chaplain, Southern Baptist Holt Swan? Chaplain Swan told his wife that he had not obtained affidavits from either of the two accusing women - and that he could not recall ever having been reprimanded by Jensen.

But the Rev. Herman Benner (former Chaplain - Col., U.S. Army) of American Baptist headquarters commented:

"Jensen had to reprimand Swan repeatedly for laxities. And Swan's signature as witness is on these women's affidavits, photostatic copies of which we have."

Why is it that during all the time that he faced possible imprisonment that Chaplain Jensen recalls that the Navy's chief of chaplains, Methodist Admiral Francis Garrett, never came near him and did not return his phone calls?

After the acquittal, Admiral Garrett wired Jensen congratulations and promised a forthcoming visit. When contacted by phone about this strange brand of pastoral care, Admiral Garrett refused comment unless, in Washington and under supervision of Navy public relations.

Garrett's predecessor, Southern Baptist Admiral James Kelly, when asked why he had not investigated a similar case, replied: "We investigate the scriptures." This flagrant lack of concern will probably be emulated by the Congress, especially in an election year. Witness the perfunctory buck-passing by the few senators who even bothered to respond to the written appeal from the Jensen Defense Fund, sent to all 100 U.S. Senators for a congressional investigation.

Wrote one senator: "Since Commander Jensen's legal residence is not in the State of Maine, in accordance with senatorial courtesy and custom, it would be improper for me as a Maine senator to intercede on his behalf (signed) Margaret Chase Smith."

But Mrs. Smith's concern for non-Maine citizens apparently can extend all the way to California - as when she attracted national publicity by fighting Air Force Reserve promotion for Percy Stewart.
