Art Has Been Recovered

Through the flight of centuries there has existed a myth that the ancient Egyptians knew how to harden copper and that with the death of their alchemist the art was lost. Today metallurgists of the brass industry know how to harden copper alloys far beyond the dreams of the ancient Egyptians. The brass mills have alloys as strong or stronger than many steels and with the rust-proof and corrosion-resistant qualities of the oldest metals of commerce.

When choosing bean seed, remember that bright seed having a good color and luster indicates strong healthy seed which would make good plants. Discolored seed may be caused by weather — weathered beans may or may not germinate.

KOREANS WANT THEIR LANGUAGE TAUGHT

WASHINGTON DIGEST . . .

Russian Red Army is mobilized; it is largely concentrated in eastern Europe, whereas American troops are thinly scattered over the whole earth. Russia has never really demobilized, she has more combat planes and men to man them; she has a greater land force; a numerically-superior artillery.

We are strong in bombing planes, but she has a strong defense in fighter and interceptor planes. She is believed to be producing from 75,000 to 100,000 planes a year. We produced 1,709 military planes of all types last year.

But "our biggest shortage is in equipment," said a veteran officer. One might go on at great length. I won't. I have rehearsed the sad story of "redeployment" ever since I first heard it from a general's secretary, who, like most of the rest of us, thought it was "reemployment."

In case you have forgotten, the United States Army, the greatest military machine in history, was "redeployed" out of existence and under such pressure from mothers and wives that in many cases it didn't leave a pile of scrap behind it to mark the spot whence it melted and dribbled away. The Red army didn't re-deploy. It is still largely deployed.

And so here we are again!

PANICKY OUTLOOK IS NOT JUSTIFIED

One might become exceedingly pessimistic, one might grow panicky. But, as I think over the interviews, as I recall the faces of those men charged with our nation's defense, as I ponder the words, the tone of voice, I must say the net impression of the contacts is to make me feel more hopeful than I had felt before.

I had been pretty depressed when I began the round of calls in the various little cells that open onto the endless corridors of the Pentagon offices, large and small, with maps on the walls, the men in uniform or civilian clothes at desks.

When I left, I had the feeling that here were men who were looking at the task before them coolly and calmly, neither obsessed with a certainty that they were moving into another inevitable conflict nor indifferent to the possibilities that such might be the case.

"We anticipate no belligerent or provocative move on the part of the Russians. We don't pretend to be able to say what their plan is, or whether they have one. In any case, it is not our move. Whether there is to be peace or war depends upon the men in the politburo. We have no way of knowing what their next step will be. We doubt if they have made up their minds . . ."

And then one official came back to the remark I quoted before:

"Personally," he said, "I do not think Russia wants war. I am certain that we do not."

As I say, I went out past the reception desk, through the high doors and out to where the quiet river holds the city in its tranquil embrace. It looked no more turbulent, no less peaceful, when, during the war years, I used to come out that same door with my notes interpreting the latest strategic war in Normandy, the breakthrough at St. Lo, the Battle of the Bulge, Patton's tactical miracles.

Washington is calm. The other day as I opened my closet door, I noticed my trenchcoat with the faded blue patch with "war correspondent" on the shoulder. It didn't give me a turn. After all, we have just won the greatest victory of its kind in history — the completion of the plan to aid Europe. That and a few bloodless steps which caution and not desperation dictate are enough for now.

June is the "dew month" in Japan. In this country, we insist every month is "due month".

Michigan Mirror

the governor's expense allowance of $10,000 a year, was unconstitutional. Legislators countered promptly, voting a "grant" of $12,500 to the governor for a total compensation of $20,000 instead of $17,500.

Ironically enough it was Black, selected personally by the governor for attorney general, who has displayed consistent independence to date by saying exactly what he thinks. Black has often done so bluntly and non-diplomatically in direct opposition to the man who picked him for the office.

Mr. Black has no concern for his political future. He expects to retire from office at the end of his present term. Particularly irritating to Mr. Black is the fact that 12 employees of his department receive more compensation from the State of Michigan than he does. This doesn't make sense to the young Port Huron attorney.

As Mr. Black was hand-picked by Governor Sigler at the 1946 Republican state convention for the post of attorney general, the legislators were cool to the governor's recommendation that the constitution should be amended whereby his office would become appointive, rather than elective.

It all adds up to one thing, as we have often observed. People do not think alike. Presented with identical information, they react differently. Honest differences of opinion are to be expected as a natural course of events in a democracy.

The important thing is that the people should have access to complete information. This often comes through a popular debate of issues in which both sides are represented, and the people thus have an opportunity to choose.

Are U. S. farmers in wealth? Not according to recent reports from the Department of Agriculture and the department of Commerce.

Of the 200 billion dollar national income, farmers receive about 18 billion. And the average farm income in 1947 was $900, compared to $1,400 for non-farm people.
