WEAVER
"A SAFETY LANE CHECK MAY SAVE YOUR NECK"

Right about now—
your furnace or stoker is pretty tired

After its 6 or 7 month race with Old Man Winter . . . a good part of it in sub-zero temperatures . . . your coal heating plant is due for a little well-deserved attention.

Remember that coal and coal heating equipment, working efficiently together, comprised the only heating system that won hands down over Old Man Winter . . . without once being lapped by shortages, heat interruption or turned-down thermostats. You'll want to be sure it does an equally good job next year—and it will, if you give it half a chance.

A good thorough cleaning, a complete checkover for worn or defective parts, a careful inspection of flues and heating surfaces—and your furnace or stoker will be ready for next winter's triumph over the thermometer. Facilities are ready now for thorough, unburied care of this important matter.

Your local coal retailer is the man to consult about cleaning and repair service. Pick up the 'phone and call him now, before you forget.

If your local coal merchant has no facilities for cleaning service, or for emergency service 24 hours a day for your furnace or stoker . . . call CHERRY 4331.
