WAR BRIDE PRODUCES TRIPLETS

NEW YORK, N. Y. — Proud parents look over tiny arrivals at Union Hospital, the Bronx. Already christened, their names are Rene Joseph, Henrietta May and Catherine Theresa. Father is wondering how they'll all fit in a 1½ room apartment.

PACKING HOUSE TRIALS HELP REDUCE PEACH-ROT

Millions of dollars are lost annually through the sale of reduced prices of crops that fall below market standards. During 1947, a severe outbreak of brown-rot of peaches in many Michigan orchards adversely affected the growers' incomes. These facts are reported by H. A. Cardinell and A. E. Mitchell of the Department of Horticulture at Michigan State College in the Michigan Quarterly Bulletin.

In cooperation with a manufacturer of food machinery, the Michigan Growers Exchange, horticultural experts tested equipment and a method of preservation new to Michigan. Briefly, the process consisted of moving packed wooden containers without pad and cover, through a torrential downpour of ice water to which a chlorine-type germicide was added. As the containers emerged from their bath, padding and covers were fastened in place. Some bushels went into cold storage and others were held at room temperature. The holding periods were designed to simulate the conditions Michigan peaches must encounter in distant shipments, with and without refrigeration, and in the time lapse for distribution to stores and for retail sales.

Following the holding periods, each peach was examined for infection. The results showed a marked reduction in rot control in favor of the treatment, as compared with the more common packing-house method of dusting the fruit with a common fungicide. Tests in 1948 are including vegetables and other fruit crops in an effort to help delivery of better quality produce to the consumer. Results indicate that ripener and more mature produce can be sent considerable distance if so treated and yet leave ample time for distribution and consumers to handle the product with a minimum of spoilage.

Producers of Nitrogen. United States is the largest producer and also the largest importer of nitrogen. Imports this year should be about 187,000 tons compared to exports of 61,000 tons. This gives a net gain of 126,000 tons.

LOCALS

Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Schreiber, son Richard and daughter Margaret have returned to their home on Oakland Avenue after enjoying a six weeks motor trip through the West. They toured nineteen states, seeing the Big Horn, the Bad Lands, Yellowstone National Park, Spokane and Seattle, Washington, driving along the Pacific Coast through the Redwood forests, and around San Francisco and Sacramento, returning through Donner Pass to Salt Lake City. They visited the Mormon Temple, and at noon heard one of the famed organ recitals, which they reported to be truly wonderful. They also enjoyed a swim in the Great Salt Lake. En route home they stopped at Springfield, Illinois, where they visited Lincoln's Tomb, and the many places nearby which were associated with Lincoln during his lifetime. Mary Huels has returned home after a vacation visit with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson of Witkom.

Australia's Big River. Australia's great, snow-fed river, the magnificent Snowy, tumbles swiftly through wild gorges and rugged hills at 2,400 cubic feet per second, descending from its source in New South Wales in the Australian Alps a great question mark loop before reaching the Pacific on the Victorian coast at Orkney. At last the great river is to be harnessed, and the big question is, will the water be used to produce more Australian yellow peaches or more "white" power?

Nurses in the War. When Florence Nightingale arrived at Scutari during the German war and took over the care of the English wounded, the death rate for wounded soldiers was from 50 to 60 per cent. She organized all the English hospitals in the Crimea with such telling effect that the death rate fell to a point not then equaled even in times of peace: 22 per 1,000. Her noble traditions were carried on in World War II by more than 75,000 U. S. nurses who served with our armed forces all over the globe. Their efforts contributed greatly to the high health standards of G. I. Joe, reports the American Nurses' association.

William Stison On Navy Cruise In Pacific Area

Midshipman William A. Stison, USNR, son of Mr. and Mrs. David B. Kittila of 18624 Irving, is serving aboard the light cruiser USS Pasadena in a task group which includes the light cruisers Astoria and Springfield and the battleship Iowa, in one of the summer's midshipmen training courses. The midshipman visited Seattle, Washington; Long Beach and San Diego, California; and Honolulu, T. H. during the sea-going phase of their Reserve Officer training. Enroute to the ports of call, gunnery, seamanship, aircraft and submarine exercises were held.
