If there is a couple or a lonely old person alone, Farmington who would like to spend a week at Camp Lakeview with others of their age, the Salvation Army will be happy to plan on their coming for the week of August 25 to September 1. Any one interested is asked to write to me at once to call Lt. Eva Roberts at Cadillac 2292.

My own mother, Mrs. E. S. Galt, 1405 Hospital, Room 2, Pontiac, Michigan, will be celebrating a birthday on August 25. As she is not well, it would make me very happy if you would drop her a card.

Mrs. John Ambreger, 19980 Andover Street, Detroit, was selected as most beautiful Harry Ambreger, who had a wish last week and that it was a wish that the hours of being ill were over. Perhaps Farmington friends would also like to join that wish.

24-year-old Marie Adams at the Oakland County T.B. Sanitarium, would enjoy hearing from other young people.

Travel Advice: Go Light And Be Smart

FOR MOTORING, this Sun Valley girl wears the skirt and jacket of a three-piece faded blue denim "basic" outfit popular at the Idaho resort.

Travel light. Avoid vacation luggage woes by shunning fussy clothes; choose ensembles that serve a variety of purposes, require minimum maintenance and space.

That's the practical advice of Fred Picard, Sun Valley resort manager. He also says that he sells sport clothes at the Union Pacific vacation village in Idaho.

"A summer vacation is made for fun," Mr. Picard says. "It points out, 'It's old fashioned to think that vacation luggage means a dozen suitcases, a trunk, and a pile of bags.'

Travel light by choosing carefully what you bring. Pack functional clothes—multi-purpose ensembles are ideal—and perhaps one outfit for each day.

"Skirts and blouses can be combined for a variety in costumes. Here is Sun Valley girl's outfit: a long, flowing peasant-type ensemble for evening—long flaring skirts with white off-the-shoulder blouses.

For day sports are ideal for daytime functions, even though you don't indulge in sports. So bring simple clothes and leave your luggage worries behind.

FOR CASUAL WEAR, a red bandanna blouse replaces the jacket and combats the need for other basic outfit.

It's a quick change for spectator sports, or just plain lounging.

FOR SPORTS, a quick change to pedal pushers—third piece of the basic outfit.

FOR LUNCHEON, this smart creation of rustling cotton taffeta slips right over a ...

SUNSHINE ENSEMBLE of the same material. Another advantage: it packs in little space.

FOR DINNER, a light, airy blouse and a long, flowing skirt.

Explains Use Of
New Soap Products

Our grandmothers would have been confused with our references to "soapsuds soap." Also known as detergents, these new soaps may be equally confusing to modern homemakers who wonder about their use.

The fact that some of these soaps and detergents may contain substances that help to identify them is helpful to guide us in selecting from these many new products is offered by Irma Gross, head of the Department of home management and child development at Michigan State College.

A builder is an alkaline substance added to help soften the water, the home economist reports. Soaps are made of animal or vegetable oils, builders are labeled "pure soap," and with it they are labeled "soap."

The pure soaps are good for fine fabrics and colors that may fade.

especially cotton, linen and rayon. The soap with the builder are often labeled for general laundry work. They are effective for heavily soiled cottons that will not fade.

Detergents are more effective in hard water than soap. Dr. Gross explains. They are not labeled soaps but are labeled "soapsuds" or "soapsuds." Detergents without a builder are hard to identify from the label except that the product is recommended for delicate fabrics. They are good to use for fine fabrics and colors that may fade and silk.

Detergents with a builder are not labeled in any special way but are often recommended for general laundry work. They are good to use for heavily soiled cottons that will not fade and for dishwashing.
