Pastoral Institute Has New Head, Endowment

With a new director and a new endowment grant of $150,000, the Institute for Advanced Pastoral Studies is moving forward in its aim to "make every man an articulate, aware theologian."

DR. JOHN E. BIERSDORF

The words are those of Dr. Reuel L. Howe, who has headed the institute in the Cranbrook complex, Bloomfield Hills, since its inception in 1957.

During a press conference Thursday, he announced that Dr. John E. Biersdorf is taking over as the institute's director.

Dr. Biersdorf in turn announced receipt of the grant from the Lilly Endowment, which, he said, "allows us to do planning and developmental work and set us on a whole new basis."

The institute's program under Dr. Howe had been providing conferences and seminars for church leaders, both clergymen and laymen.

More recently, the institute has included teachers, chaplains, pastors in special ministry and lay leaders, and they come from the Catholic faith and an assortment of protestant denominations.

At the outset, the institute was one of two in the country and the first group of participants numbered seven. Since then, over 5,000 have come to the Cranbrook conferences and more than 100 to the country.

Dr. Biersdorf formerly was executive director of the National Council of Churches department of ministry. He also has been lecturer in practical theology at Union Theological Seminary.

Dr. Howe will continue with the institute as a conference leader.

'Superstar' Former Editor Dies In Crash

The Rev. Philip Rodgers Magee of Plymouth's First Presbyterian Church will preach a special series of five sermons based on incidents in the musical "Jesus Christ Superstar."

The series begins March 25 and concludes Easter morning in the church, 701 Church Street. Services are at 9:30 and 11 a.m.

Entitled "Sermons From Superstar," the series deals with aspects in the life and teachings of Christ as reflected by people intimately involved in the events of His last week.

The first sermon will be on the Apostles' song at the Last Supper, "Always Hoped That I'd Be an Apostle." On April 1, the talk will be on Herod's jeering request, "Walk Across My Swimming Pool," and on April 8, it will be on Pilate's aloof question, "Who is This Broken Man Cluttering Up My Hallway?"

On Palm Sunday, April 15, the sermon will be based on the crowd's cry to Jesus at his entry into Jerusalem, "Hey J.C., Won't You Smile At Me."

"When He's Cold and Dead, Will He Let Me Be?" Mary Magdalene's reflection, which will be the subject of the Easter Day sermon.

He had attended Wayne State and Eastern Michigan universities.

The driver of the third car was uninjured and remained at the scene, but the first motorist fled, police said. The driver of the second car to hit McClellan's was not held.

Police described the car they seek as a 1971 or 1972 light blue Mercury Monterey. It was described as the right rear, they said, and possibly to the left front.

McClellan was dead on arrival at Wayne County General Hospital. McClellan worked for Associated Newspapers in Wayne, the Royal Oak Tribune and the Dearborn
