BEFORE YOU CAN EVEN SAY "HELP" BILL LOWE IS THERE.

And you would have met him last April 10, if you'd been living at 80 St. Mark's Place on New York's Staten Island.

That night over 100 families were forced out of their apartments by a five-alarm blaze. And Bill was on the scene.

Not as a fireman, or a policeman, or even a fire buff. But as a Red Cross Volunteer. Rushing to find some beds for people in a nearby church. Rounding up sweaters and pants and shoes for people who'd lost just about everything. And passing around sandwiches and coffee to weary firemen and reporters.

That fire—and Bill's 7 hours on the scene—didn't make very big headlines in your morning paper. It wasn't that kind of "major disaster." But because there was a need for such assistance, the Red Cross was there to help. With volunteers like Bill.

Red Cross Volunteers—America's best neighbors—are the backbone of services like these, all across the country. People who give their time! And themselves. Maybe you don't have a whole lot of hours to give to the Red Cross every month.

But think a little. Where do you fit in? The American Red Cross.

PEOPLE LIKE YOU HELPING PEOPLE LIKE YOU.
