

STARTS RELEASES

The conservation department will start mixed releases of banded, genetically wild and regular game farm pheasants in September in 10 southern Michigan counties. These releases will continue until a week before the opening of the hunting season.

season.

Objective is to discover, if pos-sible, any strain of bird which night be raised which might have a better chance of survival in the

A leading weekly publication —
Collier's — commends Michigan's program "to the serious considera-tion of the citizens and govern-ments of our other 47 states."

An article by Harold Tius of Traverse City, veteran member of the conservation commission who retired last year, describes Michi-gan's program of park beterment, and Collier's comments that:

and collier's comments that:

"On the 'practical' side, Michigan
gets about three times as much value out of the (inmates) work as it inveits in this successful program; it has done jobs which the state's budget otherwise would not have allowed. And in dolag then,
it ofters a solution for conservation departments' which, as Mr.
Titus says, "have been starved for hely since the days of the Civilian Conservation Corps."

CONSERVATION DEPT. Two New Archery Ranges With the season opener only a few weeks away, bow and arrow deer hunters can get in practice shots at two new archery ranges set up on state land by the conser-ration department. Available for the first time are ranges in the Three Rivers and La-peer state game areas. Roving courses again are open to the public at Algonac and Pontiac Lake state parks; Barry County, Dansville and Port Huron game areas; and at department experi-ment station. Swan Creek near Allegan and Rose lake near Lati-sing. Local archery clubs cooper-ate with the department in mali-taining facilities.
