Got "saved in half" last week, so if you find us type in the paper today don't get the idea we're putting out double features.

Kinderergarten Mums of Central Schoolers are joining the Valentine fun school today. Though "trips" this week, the kids put their little minds to planning a fine program for us mums. Featured today is "Little Red Riding Hood" and our Little Miss Pigtail is the grandma, she says. That's okay, but hope teacher doesn't have as much trouble getting her out of her head.

Back on the job this week is Mr. Karl Ritter of 25500 Eight Mile Road, whose automobile was completely demolished a month ago by a truck. The driver, who was injured, though he was badly bruised and submitted to 14 stitches on his face. And all because a fast car behind him had failed to use its brakes.

Also back "on the job" is Pfc. Harold Skinner who spent part of his 22 day furlough visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Farris of 14051 Star Street and Mrs. Carl Schmidt of Inkster Road. Harold is the son of Mrs. Arthur Davis of Wallaceburg, Ontario, and has completed ten months of service.

Mr. Arlene mechanic, he is stationed at Fairchild Airport, Washington.

A telegram last week from Lt. Sam Prisk to his wife announced his arrival at Tokyo, Japan. A dentist, Lt. Prisk will be stationed somewhere in that area for the present time. Since her husband is away, the wife, Mrs. Prisk is at home and "waiting for the mailman" and we all hope he'll keep her mailbox full during the lonely months of absence.

Happy to be home and on the road to recovery is Mrs. Maurice Waack of 2218 Scott Street. With two weeks at Mt. Carmel Hospital and two operations behind her, she seems like a pretty wonderful place to stay.

Don't you folks show home to night, though it is a rainy night, but it is the Valentine Card Party at the Clarenceville High School. You'll find your favorite card game in progress and prizes galore. Sponsored by the Edgewood Mothers' Club, this party is planned to raise badly needed funds for chairs for the gym at Clarenceville High.

Get on the line next Monday, girls, and we don't mean at the clothesline! Get on the phone and ask at least two neighbors if they're going to get out and vote on the new zoning ordinance in Farmington Township. You like being an American? Then BE one!

February 7
Sewed up for the first time already has been 23-month-old Gregory Dix, tough-tough son of Edna Dix of 21130 Middlebelt Road. Greg and his 11-month-old brother were playing the other day when Greg fell backwards, cutting open three inches of the north of his head. He's kind of proud of his "operation" and, of course, has to show everybody.

"And this too will pass" is a slogan suggested for planting one's teeth in the ground by busy mothers who live endless "stages" with each child. It was suggested by Mrs. Margaret Weaver, health consultant of the State Department of Mental Health. Education, who spoke Thursday evening at the Clarenceville P. T. A. "Children are not little adults, they are children, and we must accept the child for what he is, giving it love, security, and maximum of patient understanding are the important points of parenthood. The dozen or so mothers who have been participating in the discussion group each month have found that "Why, your child does that, too?" is a wonderful discovery to make and all children go through the same stages at various ages. Mrs. Edith Kauffel will entertain the group at the Vauxhall home on Angier Road, Tuesday 28 at 8 p.m. Mothers interested in such participation are welcome whether they are P. T. A. members or not.

Banquet time is just around the corner for the local Girl Scouts, who number about 85 this year. Mrs. Jean Moore opened her home on Negamene Monday evening to Association members who, even though it was spent planning the March banquet, "There are five Girl Scout troops in our area, one senior, three intermediate, and two Brownies troops. Mrs. Dale Page's Troop 6 is looking forward to its Court of Awards now, scheduled for February 25.

Twenty-eight Boy Scouts of CL No. 10 met at amateur hockey game at Olympia Friday night and another group, Troop No. 2 and the Cub Scouts have February 28 scheduled for their trip. According to Scout Masters Roy Seaton, Glen Grim and Bob Tougas, driving the 28 boys Friday night were Scout leaders Jack Tucker, Rock Gagner, and Mrs. Gagner, Bill and Mary Lou Gagner, and Scout Institution at Director Vern Hawley.
