Mrs. William Fairley, Mrs. George Meisner and Mrs. Norman Moore were Tuesday evening visitors at Clawson, Michigan, YFV Auxiliary 4637 meeting recently.

Kevin McKinley is confined to her home with the mumps. It seems Mr. Mumps is a very unpopu- lar guest among the younger set these days.

Our household enjoyed the Girl Scout birthday party Saturday evening. The girls and their leaders displayed many novel ideas that evening. Even the executive committee joined in the fun.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Boughton and daughters Linda and Nancy Jo were Saturday evening guests of the George Meisner family of Clawson. The Meisners were formerly residents of Farmington.

Pat Hart of Hawthorne Street celebrated his birthday on St. Patrick's Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Needham of Ferndale were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Moore.

Mr. Chester A. Menendez of Power Road left by plane Thursday on a business trip to Miami, Florida, Puerto Rico, Dominican Republic, West Indies, Venezuela, Columbia, Panama, Costa Rica, Guatemala and Mexico. Mrs. Menendez will join him in Mexico City in April. Then they will tour Mexico City, Guadalajara and Monterrey. While in Ixtapalapa, they will attend the Passion Play during Holy Week. This is reported to be very impressive.

Meadowbrook Murmurs

Just as we decided we'd escaped em, the mumps arrived at our house. Princess Deanna has the fattest cheeks we ever saw, and Prince Frederick thinks he has them but his cheeks aren't any fatter than usual. He says "Ow" quite convincingly whenever he thinks about it and he will probably be a panic to live with when he really gets them.

An exciting train trip to Philadelphia and back "Just for the ride" is pretty probable talk if you corner one of the House children of 21123 Roosevelt Street. Busy parents they have (Mom has been substituting almost every day at Central School this year) but not too busy to enjoy family fun. Rachel has been calling her third grade friends all about the trip, and "Sonny" now a first grader, is glad to have something new to brag about.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Trevisan, who tested the temperature of the Rouge River down at the end of Scotland Street, it isn't. Mrs. Trevisan's pet chicken took a flight down there, accompanied by neighborhood dogs the other day. Rescuing her poor feathered friend was cold business, despite a pair of quickly-melting hip boots. Says Mrs. M. "Don't be surprised if you see a few bare-legged boys trying it out for temperature soon, tho'."

Tommy Trewin, five year old son of the Tom Trevisans of 29095 List Street, is pretty disgusted with life right now. Not only did he miss the last days of snow while he entertained the mumps but now he's right back in bed with the measles. One of his school pals, Kurt Ulrich, is almost over the mumps now and Mom says it he brings home measles next she'll scream. Kurt's sister Kathleen had her fifth birthday Saturday minus the party she had hoped for, but at least she was minus the mumps yet.

The lovely hillside home of the Tom LaFollettes of Dresden Street was ablaze with lights Friday evening. About thirty friends of Mrs. Robert Dennis arrived with pink and blue wrapped packages and fun and laughter filled the downstairs living room as guests designated paper bonnets, babies, and ninnies.

March 15 is a date most people like to forget about, but not the Lee Hasleys of 29230 Scotland Street. Lee and Geneva were married March 15, 1946, so every March 15 is something for them to celebrate. Happy sixth anniversary to a happy couple.

Parents heard the report on the winter's eye survey at the Clarenceville P. T. A. Tuesday night. New officers were elected and we will have more news on this for you next week.

Jessie Rousseaux, who has been on the sick list for some time, is well on the road to recovery.

The next report will carry a special feature. We are going to have a sketch story on one of our members and call it "The Lady of the Day".

Who will she be? Maybe you. Birthday greetings to Sammy Oakland, who is in service, and to John A. Brown, Helen Butler, Joseph Romanzuk and Stella Romanzuk.
