fused to vote, leaving the count 7-5 against inviting Ike.
"I would like to know how the chairman voted on this matter," needled the New Hampshirite,
"I didn't," replied Connaily. "Aren't you compelled under the rules to vote like the rest of us?" inquired Tobey caustically.

"No," scowled the big Texan who, thanks to a primary battle has, now become more the senator of the Lone Star State than of the United States.

abodid vote for the security of Europh There's no politics being play-ed here, at least on my part," de-clared McMahon. "I realize that General Eisenhower's prominence in the Republican party has in-creased since his victory in New Hampshire. But before the New Hampshire results were known, I suggested to this committee that Eisenhower be invited here. "I timed my proposal to avoid the intrusion of politics. We have every reason to seek the general's views, since three-fourths of this $7,900.000,000 appropriation—or about $5,200.000,000 — will be spent through his command."
