THE BLUE AND WHITE

ASSEMBLY TO HONOR MEMBERS OF SCHOOL PUBLICATIONS STAFFS

Twelve students will be initiated into the Quill and Scroll this morning at the annual Publications Honor Assembly.

The Blue and White will place eight members in the Society. They are E. McCracken, editor-in-chief; Noreen Hamlin, copy editor; Joanne DeNies, assignment editor; and reporters C. Tullip, N. Raupp, A. Aho, J. Rogers and N. Greathorn.

Margaret Godfrey and Don Stephen, members of the yearbook art-layout staff, and Fred Raupp, business editor of the yearbook, will also be initiated. June Turner is the only member of the Falcon Staff to be initiated. The Quill and Scroll initiates will be given gold pins by Mr. Peel.

Miss Carley will award 25 certificates of award to other capable members of the Falcon staff who, for one reason or another, are ineligible for the Quill and Scroll. The assembly will end with a movie, "The Price of Freedom," which depicts the responsibilities of the press and what happens when it is suppressed by a government.

G.A.A. Begins Baseball With 60 Girls Out For Play

The Girls' Athletic Association opened their baseball season April 16.

Each class selected one or two captains and the captains then picked their teams. The girls will play baseball from now until the end of the year, weather permitting. There are six teams altogether.

Denington's team began the season by defeating Harley 16 to 6. Cox beat Day 16 to 12 and Costello beat Chapp 6 to 5.

Editorial

Editor's Note: The accompanying editorial was written by a freshman student and was considered outstanding by his instructor. Since we consider student opinion on such matters as Korea very important, we feel it necessary to publish the writing.

TROOPS AND ARMS FOR THE FAR EAST

In my opinion troops should be sent to Korea and the Far East. I think this should be done to prove where the United States and the United Nations stand on Communism and its doctrines. I feel that the whole free world should be willing to send troops to stop any form of aggression anywhere. If troops were not sent to the Far East the Reds would over-run Korea, and then Burma and French Indo-China. They would then attack the islands near the coast of Asia and after land near the United States.

Formosa is an example of aggression being stopped without fighting. The United States' Naval fleet in the Sea of Japan is a large factor in keeping a Red force from attacking the island.

Another way to stop aggression would be to have industrial nations send arms and money to countries threatened by Communist aggression. An example of this is the arms the United States is sending to the French in French Indo-China. Without this help the French could not have fought as long as they have.

As stated before, through the sending of arms to other countries, we can protect ourselves against aggression. Arming the Nationalist Chinese will keep the Reds out of Formosa, and arming the Japanese will keep the Reds out of Japan.

A FEATURE:

I Love Sports

The following statements were made in response to the oft-repeated statement, "You play sports to win."

Two questions were asked of seven students who, we think, are in a position to answer capably. The questions were: (a) "Why do you participate in the high school athletic program?" (b) "Which comes first, winning or having fun?"

The seven students answered as follows:
Kathryn Gardner (a) . . . have fun. . . build up sound bodies as well as sound minds. (b) Have fun."

Dick Brady (a) "I play to enjoy myself and have fun with the rest of the guys I run around with. To participate in an athletic program is something every able bodied boy or girl should do. (b) have fun."

Gerry Bell (a) "It's fun to be able to play with all the fellows; you learn good sportsmanship. It keeps you out of trouble. (b) Having fun comes first."

Louise Duquet (a) . . . like sports, it's excitement. (b) Fun."

Allan McFarland (a) "I play high school sports because I like them; it helps you grow mentally and physically. It makes you a better person. (b) I think it helps to win, but it is more important to have fun."

Ann Louys (a) . . . to have fun, develop good sportsmanship, and get to know girls better. (b) Having fun is more important."

These seven students have expressed opinions which, we would venture to say, show the attitude of the rest of the students.

So much emphasis is placed on winning in high school sports that the business of having fun is thrown aside to make way for winning. Winning should be second to having fun!

The coach who instructs or suggests to his team that they could win if they get that aggressive tackle or halfback "racked up" or sidetracked early in the game should go back to college or take a look at the Ten Commandments!

The public may be interested in bloodthirsty competition but the students want to have fun.

Coaches should emphasize fun as well as winning, good sportsmanship (and enforce it), fair and clean play and clean sports. The coach who knows how to handle and gain respect from kids should be praised to the highest degree. A coach with these qualities is a symbol for every boy

Contest Winners Named During Spanish Week

The winners of the Spanish projects were announced Tuesday noon. The awards were made in connection with the Spanish Department's celebration of Spanish Week.

Joanne DeNies took first place in the literary division for her short story written in Spanish. Joanne received a Spanish-English dictionary as her prize. The story was titled "Two Children of Mexico."

Ann Louys won a Spanish record in the doll division for her unusual doll picture.

Alann Williams captured first place in the craftsmanship division for a model of a Spanish galleon. He was awarded a hand-made plaque from Mexico.

Winners in the poetry contest were also announced. I. Lits won first place in the Spanish I division and Janet Williams was second.

L. Stock took first place in the Spanish II division with L. Glidemaster taking second place.

These girls will represent Farmington High at a "Poetry Reading" at Ypsilanti on May 10. J. D.

Three Boys Take Test For Psychology Study

Psychology or "Imagination" tests were given to high school boys during their study hall on Wednesday, April 9. John Pettibone, former student at Farmington High, conducted the tests. The experiments are in connection with his work at the University of Michigan.

Four slides were shown to the group for a period of twenty seconds each. Students were then asked to answer questions and describe what they saw in the pictures.

More details of the test were disclosed on Thursday, April 10. The results will not be known for at least six weeks when the testers will send a detailed report. J. R.
