

OUTBREAK OF TENT CATERPILLARS REPORTED IN UPPER PENINSULA

Outbreak of forest tent caterpillars has started in the eastern upper peninsula, the conservation department's forestry division advises.

If the outbreak follows the expected pattern, the infestation will be greater than last spring when millions and millions of the bugs were on the crawl, but the spectacle will be of shorter duration.

"The food supply in many areas may be consumed before the bugs mature, causing mass starvation," says Norman F. Smith, department staff forester. "At the same time, parasites and other natural enemies will be building up and could help control the caterpillar by 1953."

Area fanning out from Sault Ste. Marie south to St. Ignace is expected to be hit the hardest. Light infestation is probable in the Newberry area and "light pockets" are anticipated in Marquette, Dickson, Menominee and Delta Counties. In the lower peninsula, active pockets are probable in Presque Isle and Cheboygan Counties.

You can count on certified seed. It is free of noxious weeds; it germinates well; and it is a true variety. You know what you're getting when you buy seed with the tag of certification.

Obituary

Hattie Sage
Mrs. Hattie Sage died May 5 at St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital, in Pontiac following several days' illness.

She was born September 12, 1886, in Detroit, the daughter of Louis and Rachel Ouellet. She was married to Victor Carl Sage in 1910 and had resided at 23013 Lilac for the last three years.

Surviving are her husband, Victor Carl, two sons, Arthur of Detroit and Louis of Farmington; one daughter, Mrs. Phyllis O'Connor of Franklin Hills; her mother, Mrs. Rachel Ouellet of Farmington and seven grandchildren.

A Rosary service was recited at the Spencer J. Heene Funeral Home at 8 p.m. Wednesday. Funeral service will be held from Our Lady of Sorrows Church at 9 a.m. Thursday. Interment will be in the Holy Sepulchre Cemetery.

Now is a good time to make soil tests.

Mrs. Clarence Marks was hostess last Thursday evening when she opened her home on Eleven Mile Road to the thirteen members of her luncheon club. All had a grand time and enjoyed the luncheon very much.

Susan Rozenboom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rozenboom, was vaccinated recently so she will be prepared to start school this fall. It seems a shame to have to hurt the youngsters in order to protect them from such diseases but it certainly is worth the effort.

Mrs. Warren Joy and Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Delmonster and their daughter attended the annual dinner given by the Polio Foundation at Christ Church, Cranbrook, on April 30. The prime purpose of the meeting was to hear the reports on the recent drive.

I'm sure everyone will miss Mr. and Mrs. James Craig and their family, who have sold their home and moved away from Springbrook Drive.

It's not hard to know what everyone is doing these days for all you have to do is look out the door and see folks digging and planting their gardens. Seems there is no time for going places just now.

Grass offers a year-around supply of forage or feed for meat animals, say Michigan State College extension specialists. It can be grazed directly, made into hay, or made into silage. Grass is a major link between the soil and man's food.

SUGGESTS PERKING UP MEALS WITH COLORFUL SALADS

It is salad time. And although salad making may be a real challenge these spring days, Josephine Lawry, county home demonstration agent, suggests perking up meal planning with crisp, cool, colorful salads.

At the outset, make sure your lettuce or greens are crisp, she urged. To crisp greens, add ingenuity and imagination. For instance, spread cream or cottage cheese mixed with a little ham and relish on large lettuce leaves, roll up, cut in three or four inch lengths and serve on shredded lettuce with a tart dressing.

For dandelion green lovers there are many ways to serve salads. About a quart of the greens mixed with onion, vinegar, salt, hard-boiled eggs, and "wilted" with a bit of bacon makes an original springtime salad.

Watercress should not be forgotten this time of year, Mrs. Lawry reminded. Shred lettuce and toss in sprays of watercress, mix with a tart French dressing and garnish with strips of red pepper or sliced pickled beets.

The dressing can make or break a salad — and so can the application of the dressing. A tart French dressing, for instance, should be used somewhat sparingly so that all the ingredients have a light coating of dressing. But avoid the soggy, over-speed condition caused by too much dressing.
