

Senior Hi-Lite

Will you just look at that? It's a boy! He's a senior! He's skipping school! Yep, that's Willard Stamper doing his favorite pastime, at which he's always getting caught.

Willard has brown hair, brown eyes, and reaches the height of 5'9". This young lad was born out of the state — (instead of Michigan) in Cranston, Wisconsin, on June 25, 1934.

He likes Elton Britt's record, "One Hour Ahead of the Pose." What kind of song is that? Classical? As for food, he's a strange man — he likes everything and anything. To go even further, he doesn't even have a pet peeve. Now here's one boy that some lucky woman will get, that will be easy to please.

Who are his best buddies? Why, Roy Ross, Hattie Marx and Bob Evans, of course.

Willard likes shop as the subject he has the most fun in, and Mr. Kennedy is the teacher he likes best.

What does he plan to do in the future? Why, first of all, graduate! Then it's "You're In the Army Now". Yes, Willard will be marching in the Army after school. So long, Willard, and good luck. (Hope those Army shoes fit!) M. M.

ADD 247 NEW BOOKS TO SCHOOL LIBRARY THIS YEAR

Books! Books! Books! Did you know that there have been 247 new books brought into the library this year? Fifty of those have come in in the past few weeks. If you like variety, there is certainly plenty of it. There are books from baseball, including "Bonus Book" by Gene Schoor and "Player-Manager Lou Boudreau" by Ed Fitzgerald to "Stories of Great Opera" if you are classically inclined.

There are books from "The Story of Our Calendar" to "The Dog Next Door"; from a square dance book to "Conquest of Space", a science fiction book written by Willy Ley and illustrated by Chesley Bonestell.

What will they think of next? Why, it's "Baby-Sitter's Manual".

Something interesting for Seniors might be a guide to colleges. There are bound volumes of the "Reader's Digest" from the years 1937 to 1952. Another is the Sue Barton series, including "Jane Barton, Neighborhood Nurse".

There is a biography of "Mahatma Gandhi" and a humorous book by Robert Benchley called "Henchley Or Else" and "We of Nagasaki" by Takashi Nagai.

Another book list is to be ordered by the end of the year, so that if all these books are read, next year there will be new material to satisfy your reading pleasure.

If any student or faculty members have suggestions for the library they will be appreciated and welcomed by Miss Richardson.

Editorial

A month from now, seniors from most high schools will be graduating. They will have gone through eight years of elementary school and four years of high school. At this time they supposedly know what they are to make of their life.

But do they know? How many graduates, upon leaving high school, know what they want? Some say, "I'm going to college" and leave it at that; others "I'll get some job until I get married," is this a good idea? Shouldn't a person have a profession, a job that they can do? If you go to college, you will have a profession of some sort, but if you don't, where are you? This does not mean that everyone need go to college. No, but everyone should have a profession. A girl should know how to type, how to take shorthand, how to cook or any such profession that will always be able to take care of her. No girl can count on marriage as a solution to being without a profession. Many girls work after marriage and an accident can happen, leaving them without means of support.

What about a man. Without a profession he is just another laborer with or without a job. A common laborer loses his job in a shortage of jobs. He may tramp the streets for days without a sign of a job. But a man with a skilled profession is usually able to find a job easily. He is wanted and needed.

That is why everyone should have some sort of profession, something they can depend on all their lives to keep them. Are you planning a profession? A. A.
