

Washington Merry-Go-Round

General Omar Bradley flatly refused the loose talk that Chiang Kai-shek's forces could invade the Chinese mainland. He claimed that the Chinese Nationalists are in no shape to defend Formosa, let alone invade the mainland, without American ships and troops to back them up.

Chiang's navy, Bradley said, couldn't land more than a thousand troops on the China coast.

Senator Knowland of California demanded to know why Nationalist troops have not been used in Korea.

Bradley replied bluntly that Chiang's soldiers are barefooted, bedraggled and demoralized. If we can ever spare enough supplies to transport, partly due to the low prestige of the Truman administration. Even St. Paul himself, were he running the house of representatives, couldn't keep the Democrats in congress on week ends — without handcuffs and a shotgun. The congressmen promise the leaders they will be present to vote, but then take off. The Democrats have a numerical advantage of 32 members over the Republicans in the House, but there were more Republicans than Democrats on the floor when the house voted to kill price control.

While congress spends thousands of taxpayers' dollars to pay for its own luncheons in various parts of the world, congressional appropriations committees have just voted $30,000 to pay for a Gold Star Mothers' pilgrimage to dedicate a war memorial in France. This represents 18 cents for every soldier killed on foreign soil in World War II, but congress thinks it's too much to spend in their memory.

Some of the nation's best archers will converge on Jackson August 4-9 to compete in the six-day championship target tournament of the National Archery Association.

Only two years ago, the conservation department notes, Michigan was host to the National Field Archery Association's annual field championship meet, held at East Tawas state park.

The 1952 target tournament is scheduled at Ella Sharp park in Jackson, except for the flight (distance) shoot which will be held at Maule airport in the nearby village of Napoleon. Men, women and junior archery experts will compete in assigned divisions.

The tournament, expected to draw as high as 250 top U. S. archers, will make headquarters at the Hayes Hotel.
