Proved that this week:

THIS THURSDAY

brings to a close the Farmington Little League schedule for 1952.

We have devoted considerable space to activities of the Little League during the past two months. No single project undertaken in our community has created such interest and eathusiasm.

It has not only established a new kind of wholesome recreation for our younger boys but it has created a new kind of catertainment for all of our residents. The terrific success of the program can best be judged by the continued attendance at the games. To the many people who turned out regularly to watch the contests, to the officials, managers, sponsors and last but far from least, the players, congratuations on making a dream a reality, not only for this year but for years to come.

O'R FIRST REPORT

O'T Hyng sauters' came in this week. According to Mrs. Claude Bolling, 22866. Erookada, and Mrs. Dorn Tarner, 22815. Brookada, and Mrs. Dorn Tarner, 22816. Brookada, they was two bright, long, glowing objects race across the sky. They both said they saw the objects and followed them until they faded from view. We have been watching the sky every chance we have had in the hopes that we might ring up a "first" but we got beat. Lloyd Gullen brought in a colored slide last week, wilch he took in Florida, showing the prettiest "saucer" you ever saw. It was actually a cloud grouping, but was identical to recent pictures of "saucers" shown in the newspapers. Even though we can't get a "first" keep looking, you may catch a glimpse of things very interesting.

We might be supported by the summer of the Farmington area this summer. We nightly busy place. New school buildings are opporting us all over the city and township, the new township fire hall its taking shape, work is now under way on South Farmington Bood, the new Our Lady of Sorrows School addition and rectory is progressing, two new fee cream stands have just been completed on Grand River in the City, and a large number of new homes are popping up throughout the area. For all we know we may have left out something, as it is a real job just trying to keep track of the new construction going on. It is plenty busy, anyway... we are sure of that. . . . .

are quiet this week after aix weeks of activity. The Farmington Area Recreation Commission's summer program officially ended last Friday with the Bob-Lo Island Boat trip. During these past weeks, a lot of Farmington youngsters have had an opportunity to enjoy clean, wholesome recreation under careful and interested supervision. It is no easy task to keep these active boys and girls interested and busy. Don Hossler, director, the playground supervisors and committee members deserve a real voice of appreciation from the citizens of Farmington for their time and efforts.

A geological survey of the Farmington City water supply will be conducted in the next few weeks by the Michigan State Conservation Department, city officials announced this week.

clals announced this week.

The survey is being made at the request of the city to determine the potential supply of water'as well as the source and conditions. A meter is also being installed on the city pumps to check the efficiency of the present water system.

Plan Big Playday At Clarenceville

Clarenceville's summer recrea-tion program will officially close next Thursday, August 14, with a gala play-day and picnic at the Clarenceville High School play-

Charenevitie High School play-ground. The closing day was originally set for Friday, August 15, but has been moved up one day, Joe Mar-kell, director, stated this week. There will be special games and contests with prizes awarded to the winners. Youngsters are in-vited to bring their lunch as a big picnic will be held at noon. Young-sters from the Edgewood play-ground will be transported by bus to the Clareneville playground. Activities will begin about 10:00 am. The regular swimming pro-

Playground supervisors gather around Don Hossler, center, for a brief last-minute confer-ence Friday morning as three bus loads of Farmington youngsters prepare to pull out for the Annual Band and Recreation Boat trip to Bob Lo Island. All of the boys and girls were in the buses and eager to get started when this photo was taken. The buses gathered at the Farmington High School after making pick-ups at the various playgrounds in the Bistelet. The same scene was repeated at Clarencerille, Mitord and Livonia Friday morning with all of the buses meeting at the foot of Woodward Avenue in Detroit where the youngsters embarked for the annual outling.

This is one way to get that tree down and off to the mill, and it's the easy way, too . . but you can't get the result, shown on the right, without the rig, shown on the left. They are doing it the easy way They are doing it the easy way down on South Farmington Road, where these photos were taken last Thursday, and they have the stuft to do it with, too. It is all part of the clearing operation, preparatory to the base widening and resurfacing of the road.

The trees are transland and an The trees are trenched and a cable from the 35-ton "Big Ber-tha" is secured to the base. A winch is engaged, and out it comes.
