Cows To Abort, Says Vet

Several diseases can cause a cow to abort, farmers are advised by Dr. Glen W. Reed, extension specialist in animal pathology at Michigan State College. In each case, farmers can head off trouble in the rest of their herds by calling a veterinarian immediately for an accurate diagnosis.

In any case, a veterinarian's aid is needed.

Lift truck boosts profits for fruit growers

Fruit growers who handle 10,000 crates a year can realize generous savings on labor and equipment costs by using a fork lift truck. A recent study by agricultural engineers of Michigan State College and the U.S. Department of Agriculture revealed this saving: In 1950, without a lift truck, a 25,000-bushel apple crop was moved from orchard to storage by 2 tractors, 4 orchard trailers and 7 men. In 1951 a similar crop was handled by a lift truck with 2 tractors and only 2 trallers and 3 men. Savings on loading and unloading operations alone amounted to $1,000 during the harvest season. Your County Agricultural Agent can give you further advice on mechanizing your orchard operation. Fruit growers who handle 10,000 crates a year

Why we pamper telephone poles

Did you know timber for telephone poles is growing scarce? And that the cost of a single pole has more than doubled since 1980? To insure a proper supply, and to help keep costs down, Michigan Bell is using new timber species such as Western Larch. And to prolong the life of telephone poles on the 90b, telephone engineers constantly take advantage of new and better timber preservatives. Michigan Bell's pampered poles are further evidence of a continuing effort to hold costs down while keeping the quality of telephone service high.
