 A lazy man is soon done for if he has no one to do for him.
 Women know a lot about raising children—if they haven't any.
 Many a man has quit drinking when he couldn't hold any more.
 Sometimes a woman's crowning glory is pinned on for the occasion.

 The man with the corrugated forehead is now figuring on the probable cost of his wife's new fall outfit.
 When a bachelor minister comes to a small town every married woman therein begins to sit up and take notice.
 If you hear a man say he doesn't know what to do with his money, it's doughnuts to fudge he isn't married.

Hallow'en Social.

The Hallow'en social last Friday evening at the town hall, was attended by about 100 people. The program which was of the "short and sweet" variety, consisted of two songs, with Miss Lula Grace as the "prima donna," assisted by a number of young ladies. The same young ladies, with Mrs. Truscott and Mrs. Way, to keep them steady, served the refreshments. Games of various kinds were played and about 11 o'clock the party broke up. Receipts of the evening were $11.57, netting the League $9.57.

Captain Linden's Mountain Mystery.
 That is the title of a special feature article written by George Barton, which will appear in the next issue of this paper. George Barton is the dean of detective story writers. A good detective story imbibed occasionally is a tonic for the brain. The intricate workings of the system employed by Captain Linden in arriving at solutions never worked with greater success than in the Mountain Mystery Case.
 Mike Rizzolo, the William. Does not that name fairly sizzle with villainy? Well, he was just as bad as his name, perhaps a little bit worse. A great bundle of cash sufficient to pay an army of men, mysteriously disappeared. None could trace it. It vanished from the face of the earth. Secret service men were puzzled. Then they called on Captain Linden. The way that giant mind turned the guilty parties into the spotlight's glare made a name for Linden. We can't spoil this tale for you by telling here how the captain did it, so get the next issue of this paper (and read how. Appropriately illustrated. It's great. Don't miss it. Get our next issue.

Elderly People Helped Free

The last years of life are the sweetest, and yet the most difficult to prolong. It is then that the greatest care is exercised in maintaining bodily health. But the chief care should always be with regard to the food you eat and whether you are digesting it properly. You should not allow yourself to become constipated.
 No doubt you have tried salts and cathartic pills, purgative tablets, etc. and have come to the conclusion that they are violent in action and do but temporary good. Listen, then, to the voice of experience with regard to a wonderful and mild laxative, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is not new, only we are trying to find new users for it.
 A. A. Felix, of Johnston City, Ill., suffered from stomach trouble for six years and found his cure in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. His wife uses it too with success. We could name hundreds of others. Some heard of it first through a neighbor or friend, others through the doctor's offer to send any sufferer from a stomach trouble or bowel complaint a free sample bottle for trial, without charge. You will send your name and address and he will send you a trial bottle direct to your home. It proves itself as he claims that he continues the treatment by buying a 50-cent or $1 bottle of your request, as all of them sell the same. Like children, should look for purity, and it is well to mention that the purity of this remedy is vouchsafed for with the U. S. Government. Also though a trial bottle is sent to prove its merits, results are always guaranteed from the regular bottle bought of druggists, who will refund your money if it does not satisfy you. Send at least for the free trial bottle today.
 If there is anything about you that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

A Creed.
 I believe that happiness is not a matter of dollars nor a condition of society, but a condition of mind. You can be happy if you will.
 I believe that success is a matter of inspiration and enthusiasm. Without these there can be no success.
 I believe in the common people. They are more honest, more faithful, more true. There are so many people now trying to be intellectual giants that the simplicity and naturalness of the unlearned is restful.
 I believe in the out of doors. It rests and fortifies me to withstand the fool's life in the city, where men labor in the fever and dirt.
 I believe in the great teachers but the greatest of all teachers is our mother. Her truths have remained immutable, her words of wisdom unimpeachable still.
 I believe in my fellow men—not absolutely, not promiscuously, but to that degree in which I should expect them to believe in me.
 I believe in cheerfulness. It is the sesame that leads to peace and comfort. It puts embouppon on a man's stomach rather than wrinkles in his brow. I prefer the surling class for mine.
 I believe in women—sometimes—and I would suggest that women believe in men likewise. Men, women and apples are not all perfect. Some must have specks and yellow streaks.
 I believe in making all the money I can and canning a part of it. The rest I believe in spending for the titillation of my gratification and in the payment of my liberal millinery bills. I cannot travel this life's road again and I want to see some of the side-shows as I go along. At the same time I do not want to forget that some of the best shows may be away up at the end of the road.
 I believe in bulldogs and whist, a fireplace and a book (if I may select it) and enough nights in so society to keep my wife from hating home.
 There are a lot more things in which I believe, but I believe this should suffice for one declaration of principles.—Western Publisher
