PROFESSOR PREDICTS SCHOOL ROOM CRISIS IN STATE BY 1956, SUBURBS MOST AFFECTED

A Michigan State College sociologist has predicted a 37 per cent increase in the already bulging Michigan public school enrollment during the next five years.

Dr. John F. Thaden, population expert of the Michigan State College department of sociology and anthropology, said that a record total of 172,451 babies were born last year in Michigan. This total, 12,000 more than in 1950, will be reflected in further increases beginning with kindergarten in 1956.

Enrollments in the Michigan public schools will continue to rise rapidly for many years and are expected to reach 1,465,000 by the fall term of 1956, Dr. Thaden said.

This potential increase points to an immediate need of about 12,000 new public school classrooms and as many additional teachers, the Michigan State sociologist added.

Dr. Thaden warned that this is not a temporary situation. He said that Michigan's public school enrollment will probably remain over the 1,500,000 mark for many years.

The rapidly growing suburban areas will probably be hit the hardest by the need for new classrooms and teachers.

vention to revise the state's taxing setup? The legislature in 1952 approved such a convention; Governor Williams vetoed the bill. Practical result: A stalemate at Lansing.

"We have reached a point where the deficit can't go on increasing," the scholarly auditor general says. "I have scraped and gathered up every nickel I can find. We've cut down on expenses, capital outlay—everything. We are right down now where we can't find any more."

Some of our lawmakers were surprised recently when they learned they had passed a law ordering the corrections commissioner to establish a psychiatric clinic at Jackson prison. They neglected to put up any money for it. When the omission was brought to their attention, several were surprised to find such a law on the books.

Half-dozen or so schoolmen are casting eyes at the chair of the superintendent of public instruction, now seating Dr. Les M. Thurston. Thurston leaves office June 30.

The University of Michigan is encouraging students from small cities and rural areas to enroll in its medical school on the theory that those reared in small communities are likely to return to their own or similar areas to practice after graduation and that is where the state is shortest of physicians.
