The Oakland County Planning Commission says that it will keep its fingers on the pulse of highway growth in the county. In the near future, meetings will be arranged with state planning groups. George Krubb, commission planning director, reports that a land subdivision guide—drawn up by the commission as a desirable pattern for subdivision development—will be ready soon for approval of the Board of Supervisors.

The special session of the Michigan legislature replaced justices on township boards with trustees. This move filled the gap on local boards when the State Supreme Court knocked the justices off the boards. In all townships in Oakland County, the trustees will be named for two-year terms at every biennial spring election starting April 6. The legislature also reduced the number of justices in each township from four to two. These moves fit into the pattern, noted by many political observers, that the office of township justice is losing its influence as cities expand and are created.

Plans for the new $5,000,000 Oakland County Hospital are expected to be put out for contractors' bids by spring. Hospital architects are completing drawings of the five-story, cross-shaped structure which will be erected on a 105 acre tract at Woodward Avenue and Cooldidge Highway at the Thirteen Mile Road. The hospital, with at least 200 beds and emergency and general facilities to serve southern Oakland County, is expected to be finished in 1954. Its completion will give the county three large hospitals, with two serving northern county residents in Pontiac.

Each year 45 to 50 million tons of coal move across Ohio for shipment over the Great Lakes.

Of Michigan's total land area of nearly 36.5 million acres, 52 per cent, or 19 million acres, are classified as forest land.
