BEAR HUNTING SEASON OPENS; RULES NOTED

Michigan's first 1953 bear hunting season opened April 1 in the upper peninsula, the conservation department notes.

The season will run through May 31, the first of five open in Michigan this year under new bear policies.

Cubs and mother bears with cubs are protected during the April-May season, and dogs may not be used in hunting the animals. Also, a 1952-53 small game license is needed by hunters in the woods.

In general, the regulations were designed to give the bear something more protection than previously. In the past, bears could be taken the year around in 10 of 15 upper peninsula counties. Some lower peninsula counties also were open year around.

The other seasons include the summer season, when dogs may be used in the upper peninsula; the fall season when dogs may be used statewide for hunting; the archery season, which coincides in dates with the fall season, and the general firearm season in November.

Bears have been high in population during recent years. They are found generally throughout the upper peninsula, with some what higher populations found in the area of National Forest, eastward to Schoolcraft County, and west into Marquette County.

In the northern lower peninsula, closed until the summer season, the area of high bear population include Emmet, Cheboygan, Otsego, Presque Isle, Montmorency and Alpena counties and as far south as the Dead-Stream area.

ROSE LAKE ROSIE SURVIVES NIMRODS, STILL PRODUCING

Rose Lake Rosie has returned! Just when given up for lost by conservation department workers who operate the Rose Lake Wildlife station, the famous Scotland appeared in a live trap early this week, back in her usual haunts, a patch of pine and shrub on the station grounds.

The enigma veteran was last captured shortly before hunting season in August, 1952. It marks the fourth straight year she has proved more wily than Nimrod.

Rosie weighed in at four pounds one ounce when taken this week, quite as plump as ever.

Game men say the number of rabbits that live through their fourth winter is very small, probably less than one per cent. Only three percent live through three winters. Two winters is more generally the rule.

Rosie has done more than her share for the Rose Lake station. It is probable that she has added 30 or more of her children to the woodlots where she lives. Her record of live trap captures now totals 42, more by far than any other Rose Lake animal. She has made her ear tag, No. 19722, a famous number in department files.

Rose Lake workers will be looking forward this summer to more visits with their "Lady of the Lake", more little Rosies around the grounds and more wildlife information from their wild friend.

ROLLING DOWN THE RIVER

By Bob Kettler

We listened to a conversation the other day, that for lack of a better story, we'll pass on to you. Fellow we know went to the market to do a bit of shopping and when his selections were finally completed the proprietor found it necessary to provide a larger container than the one already selected and said so, "Well," said the customer, "It takes a lot to feed a large family. There's seven of us."

"That's not so much," the girl answered, "I'm the tenth of sixteen children in our family." Daunted only momentarily, the man replied, "Honey, that's not a family, that's a government project."

Well, we have quite a project of our own at the moment. We want to insert as many of you into the national car show as we possibly can. You'll like the idea too, once you've enjoyed the comfortable ride and chattered to the quick, powerful response of this truly finer car, Beauty too, in fact the most beautiful car on the road. And when it comes to economy in operation, the word just naturally is Studebaker. Deep in your mind, "Honey, that's not a family, that's a government project."

Did we ever get around to telling you of the fellow who married a second time, shortly after his first wife died? A student less sort of a person and not too good a provider, he had hoped the second woman would work as diligently as the first, but alas as had the first. Two weeks after the wedding, he appears before his cronies, completely dressed in black. "Man," said a pal, "why the mourning? Did that new wife die?"

"Nope," said the character, "no such luck. That woman nags so much, I've gone back to mourning for the first."

In case you haven't observed the signs, such as rain and sun and birds and the kids borrowing the car, spring is here. Be a good fella if you rolled that winter-beaten car of yours into our service department for a spring lubrication and motor tune-up. Sort of silly, when the weather turns perfect, to drive a car that isn't having these mechanics of ours put it in condition quickly. See you soon.

That's that, but a fellow told us that though it was his son that went to college, he got the education.

Yours,

Baseball Technique Film Available Without Cost

How to improve baseball technique — with a scientific batting method and fundamentals of fielding — hot grounders, covering bases, pitching and catching — is the theme of "Play Ball, Son," a 16 mm sound film available without cost from Ford Motor Company.

In this informative documentary, Joe Cronin, a baseball immortal, demonstrates the game's fine points to a teen-age group. A narrator describes basic diamond play at every position.

Major league players and scouts claim this black-and-white film is an excellent instructional movie on the national pastime.

"Play Ball, Son" may be obtained on loan by writing to Ford Motor Company film libraries, located at 3000 Schaefer Road, Dearborn, Mich.

Plan Horse Show At MSC April 10, 11

The Horse Show at Michigan State College, April 10 and 11, is drawing near. The Friday and Saturday evening reserved seats are selling fast. All evening performances start at 8 p.m. and the Saturday matinee at 2 p.m.

The most recent attraction in this student Horse Show is young J. Bud Jones, of Mount Sterling, Illinois, the world-famous blind trick and fancy rider. Needless to say, everyone will be interested in seeing this young horseman perform at all three shows. Bud is well-known in southeastern United States and has appeared on the CBS television network. Paramount Film Company also did a series of "shorts" featuring his riding. His feats, such as standing a 50 foot rope while standing in the saddle and various hand and head stands, as well as the daring death drag are extremely difficult, even for those with perfect eyesight.

Miss Helen Bradley, with her Lipizzan dressage stallion "Messiah" was so popular in last year's show that they have been booked for a return engagement. The intricate dressage movements such as the Piaffe (trot-in-place) and the Passage (beat-in-place) are a few of the feats that make this exhibition a genuine example of showmanship at its peak.

The ever-popular Holland Farnace Six-Pony Hitch will again be a feature of this year's show. The Holland Pony Hitch has been a feature of the Block and Bridle Show for several years. Mr. Freddy Robinson, their driver, says that there must be something of the Pied Piper in the ponies for they always pick up followers.

Miss Carol Payne, a 14-year-old girl from Galesil, Michigan, will be present with her chestnut three-gated mare and demonstrate the form and showmanship that has carried her to the champion status in the State 4-H Show at East Lansing.

PARK MANAGER GIVES REFUGE TO TWO INFANTS

Two infants were recently given shelter for the night in the residence of William N. Rathbun, manager of Bald Mountain recreation area north of Pontiac, the conservation department notes.

The two youngsters were each about a foot long and together weighed not quite two pounds.

They were black bear cubs, scooped up from the forest near Bald Mountain recently by two rangers from the Pontiac area. Conservation officer Cliff Adams of Lake Orion was handed the perplexing task of caring for the two squalling cubs, and promptly called in Mrs. Rathbun, who provided warm milk and soft beds for the two.

Quite like human infants, the two drank their fill and went to sleep. Promptly at four a.m., they yowled for more and wouldn't be satisfied until fed.

The following day, the Rathbuns took the pair to the Royal Oak Zoo.
