Dondero Views Plant Problem

Congressman George R. Dondero declared this week that Defense Department plans to "mothball" the government-owned Chrysler tank plant at Centerline, and thus indirectly to affect adversley numerous smaller plants in the area, presents a serious problem with respect to employment and economic activity in Oakland and Macomb Counties.

If the plant is completely closed down by next spring, as now planned, Congressman Dondero said, approximately 3,800 breadwinners will be thrown out of employment, with hardship to their families, and a consequent hardship to businessmen of every description.

In an effort to forestall the tank plant closing, Congressman Dondero revealed, an unofficial committee of Congressmen from the areas affected has joined with Senators Homer Ferguson and Charles E. Potter in quiet negotiations with the Department of the Army to bring about utilization of the tank plant, possibly for civilian production, pending further manufacture of war goods.

It is understood, Congressman Dondero said, that the Chrysler Company management has expressed a desire either to purchase or lease the tank plant, storing the tank production equipment until occasion arises for reconversion to war production.

Congressman Dondero pointed out that continuous operation of the plant would maintain employment enable workers to keep their homes in the communities north of Detroit, and sustain general economic activity in the area at a high level.

Not only would it do these things, Congressman Dondero said, but it would hold together the skilled labor force now at the tank plant and the numerous smaller plants supplying the parts for tank production. It takes only a few weeks, or a few months at most, to reconvert a plant from civilian to war production, but it takes many months, and sometimes years, to rebuild labor force skilled in any one line of manufacture.

Efforts to solve the problem presented by Defense Department plans for the tank plant are continuing. Congressman Dondero concluded, and it is hoped that a solution will be worked out long before the scheduled plant closing date.

ATTORNEY GENERAL RULES AGAINST STATE COMMISSION

Michigan's Attorney General, Frank G. Millard, has ruled that the conservation commission has no authority to restrict the Lakehead Pipeline Company as regards possible pollution in the St. Clair River and Lake St. Clair.

Detroit, anxious that oil carried in the huge pipeline now being lain across Michigan, will further pollute its Lake St. Clair water supply, recently asked the commission to restrict the pipeline company until assurance is given that pollution will be controlled. The conservation department has been issuing easements over state-owned land to the pipeline company.

But the attorney general ruled that the pipeline company has no control over what happens to the oil once delivered to its customers, nor has it legal right to impose such conditions on customers.

Detroit has charged that refineries in Sarnia, Ontario, across the St. Clair River from Port Huron, are polluting the waters of the river and of Lake St. Clair.

The International Joint Commission, composed of three Canadians and three U. S. officials, has in the past settled border differences between the tow countries and may be called to settle the present dispute.

SEED LOWLANDS

Five pounds of reed canary grass seed on an acre of wet muck can give farmers a season-long productive grazing area, suggests Leyton Nelson, Michigan State College crop extension specialist. Use of 200 to 400 pounds of 0-9-27 or 0-10-20 fertilizer and rolling of the soil after seeding will help make the seeding successful.

John Clappison Sells Insurance

Ten of the 50 U. S. coal mines with annual production in excess of one million tons each are in Pennsylvania.

Redheads generally migrate through Michigan in early spring to nesting grounds in Manitoba, Canada.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Harvesting a Better America

Rubbed my eyes yesterday when I saw Hap Jackson's truck in Biff Morgan's alfalfa field . . . helping Biff get in his cutting.

Since they've been carrying on a friendly argument for years (over how much fertilizer to use per acre of alfalfa), I had to ask Hap what was going on.

"Got my own crop in safely last week," he says. "And since Biff's boy is at the summer encampment of the National Guard, I figured the least I could do was to help him out. After all," Hap went on, "there's no argument over how important the National Guard is to all of us."

From where I sit, a fellow like me, who's too old to get in the Guard, can still vote, do a turn at jury duty, and respect others' rights. Even a little thing like respecting a neighbor's right to have, say, beer or buttermilk at dinner is important if we want to keep America strong. We have to be on "guard" in more ways than one these days!
