Mix Water And Grain For Saving Time In Milking Parlor, Say Experts

If your cows take too much time to eat while they're belief milked, you can do something about the ablancian state College. The high producers that can more grain are usually the big oftenders in taking their time.

MSC dairymen report that you may be able to solve the problem by adding water to the grain misture. That is what is being done experimentally with a Brown Swiss herd at the college. It works well. The cows have a lusty appetite for the grain — drinking it instead of laping it in with the tongue.

Cows are, (or drank) the wet mixture in less than half the time they consumed the dry feed, And they let their milk down faster. Total '53 Apple Crop To Be Used

The latest estimates on the size of the apple crop in Michigan this year indicate that all of it will be harvested and used, according to G. N. Motts, extension marketing specialist at Michigan State College.

The Michigan Cooperative Crop Reporting Service August forecast indicates S.094.000 bushels — nearly 5 per cent below the July estimate. Marketing statistics since 1941, says Motts, show that considerable quantities of Michigan apples have been left unharvested when the state crop exceeded 8 million Justicles by any substantial amount. ubstantial amount
