EDITORIALS: It's Our Opinion

The Latest Figures . . .

released by the Farmington School Board on the future needs of the District may come as a bit of a shock to some citizens. The Board estimates that approximately $1,313,400 will be needed in order to provide adequate facilities for the expanding school enrollment.

This may seem like a pretty big order . . . and it is. But it is not too big for the actual needs of the District. If anything, these estimates are on the conservative side. However, they are all that can be legally undertaken at this time.

Out of this maze of facts and figures has come a careful analysis of the future. It is not just a figment of the imagination or a volume of fiction. It is very real. Every citizen has had an opportunity to see the tremendous growth that has taken place in this area during the past few years.

It is of vital importance that every citizen take an active and constructive interest in the future of their schools. Know the facts, learn what they mean, ask questions and offer suggestions. It's your money! But remember, schools are not built by money alone.

Your schools are big business. . . make them your business!

on the need for additional police protection in Farmington Township may seem a little monotonous but with each repetition more and more citizens come up with examples to support the need.

At the last two meetings of the Township Board the proposition has come up for very brief discussion, but no action. A special deputy was employed to assist the lone regular township policeman in the enforcement of the new hunting ban during the bird season.

With the rapid growth taking place in the township, with the new emphasis on traffic law enforcement, with the increased responsibilities of outside police agencies, additional local protection becomes ever more important. It is impossible for one man to patrol all of the roads and highways in the township, be available for emergency calls, be in court to testify on violations and make periodic checks on all bars and taverns. It is impossible, at least, to expect an efficient job on all of them.

As we have stated before, the township has made a considerable investment in equipment, including a car and police radio plus a joint financial responsibility with the city on a transmitter and teletype. It is important to the citizens that this equipment is used as often as is necessary for the proper protection of the people. This is not possible with a one-man police force.

None of us are interested in spending money just for the sake of spending it. . . but we are interested in investments that will pay dividends in convenience and service.

Familiar Faces . . .

seem to pop up sometimes in the strangest places, and usually with familiar words, too. So it was last week when a few familiar union leaders showed up over in the agricultural section. They had a lot of the usual to say in criticism of the administration and its policies and succeeded in stirring up a few headlines. But it's a funny thing, when most of the farmers are able to get a word in edgewise, they don't shout or shake or act at all like some headlines say they should.

LOOKING AHEAD by GEORGE S. BENSON

The cloak-and-dagger aspects of Communism and the glittering but false promises of Socialism make fascinating subjects for high school and college classroom discussion. On the other hand, the bare facts of capitalism or the American economic system usually are not as interestingly presented.

At the Harding College Freedom Forum last week a high school social science teacher and a personal relations director of a lumber company in Warren, Arkansas, told how they had worked together to make the facts about American capitalism a fascinating high school subject. They were Marion Hicklingbottom, of the Warren High School faculty, and William Craven, personnel director for Southern Lumber Company. Hicklingbottom is a Harding College graduate. Craven attended a Harding Freedom Forum 13 months ago. Last year they got together in some community work.

Using figures compiled by Princeton state experts for the Michigan State Aid Survey, the magazine presented a strong case.

Township officials responded by forming an organization dedicated to "sponsoring of legislation beneficial to local government, particularly townships, and to engage in the exchange of ideas and services for the improvement of township government." The quotes are those of Joseph A. Parisi, Kalamazoo Township clerk, who was elected executive secretary of the newly formed lobbying group.

Best argument favoring townships is the "grass roots" aspect. Advocates claim this system is the only method to keep voters close to their government.

Opponents assert that county agencies could maintain an equally desirable relationship with the voter, perform more and improved services, and for less money. What's more, they say, the change would permit a fairer distribution of tax money returned to local governments under present state law.

Facts and figures from the State Aid Survey show that 35.7% of Michigan's population is in township areas; 64.3% in cities. Cities and villages produce 95% of all taxes collected, but receive back only 80% of diverted funds. Looking at it another way: townships raised 5.1% of the taxes to be diverted, received 19.5% of the total.

But Craven described a debartering machine which the company needed. He told the "owners" that they were appointed. Bill Craven acted as their company manager. He placed $250,000 in simulated currency on the directors' table and told the "owners" this was their profit for one year. Everybody wanted to declare a dividend at once!

Then Hicklingbottom and Craven took them into the plant's personnel training rooms and "sold" the company to the students for $2,500,000, issuing 25,000 shares of stock. A "president," "vice-president," "treasurer" and two other "directors" were appointed. Bill Craven acted as their company manager. He placed $250,000 in simulated currency on the directors' table and told the "owners" this was their profit for one year. Everybody wanted to declare a dividend at once!

Looking Back Through The Enterprise Files

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO (November 1, 1928)
Purchase Property
A valuable piece of Grand River Avenue frontage in Farmington changed hands Thursday morning when Joseph Himmelspach, proprietor of the Farmington Dairy, purchased the property and building in which his business is located. The property has been owned for many years by the Farmington State Bank, which was formerly located there.

Plan Ball Game
A baseball game between the Farmington Exchange Club and Groves - Walker Post has been tentatively scheduled for Friday afternoon, following acceptance of a challenge made by the Legion Post. The game is to be played on the school grounds and an indoor baseball will be used.

Offer Prizes
A literary contest for students of Farmington High School, with two cash prizes, is announced this week by the Farmington Woman's Club. The competition will consist of reports of a coming Woman's Club meeting, and the two best reports will be printed in The Farmington Enterprise.

75X YEARS AGO (November 4, 1943)
O.E.S. Birthday
Farmington Chapter 233, Order of the Eastern Star, celebrated its 44th birthday anniversary at the Masonic Temple on Tuesday evening, October 26. Honored guests of the evening were past matrons, past patrons, charter members, life members and honorary members.

New Priest
A reception for Father Thomas Dehan, newly appointed pastor of Our Lady of Sorrows Church, was held Sunday evening at 8:00 p.m. in the Town Hall. Assistant Pastor Father Joseph Lemire introduced Father Dehan to the two hundred parishioners attending the reception.

Dedication Service
At a lovely worship service on Sunday morning at Salem Evangelical Church, a beautiful mother-of-pearl cross, hanging from the ceiling in the center of the sanctuary, was dedicated. The cross was given by Mrs. Alice, and Mrs. Hilda Foster, in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Foster.

Women's Class
Beginning November 10, a women's gym class will be held each Wednesday evening in the high school gym. Every woman (or girl out of high school) who wishes to spend an evening each week in physical recreation and conditioning is welcome.

Sweet music to the ears of the Clarenceville Band members was spoken at the Michigan State Fair Grounds recently when the band was signaled honored for the second time in winning a loving cup. Because of their distinctive showing in competition with other bands of Michigan High Schools, Clarenceville has been invited to participate again next year.

Plan Exhibit
The Farmington members of the Palette and Brush Club will present their fourth annual exhibition on Wednesday of next week at Farmington Town Hall. Both oils and water colors will be included in the show.
