"That's the reason why Michigan fisheries workers believe it's useless to continue to put hatchery-produced fish into lakes that already have more fish than they can support adequately. To do so is as foolish as to pour water into a filled pail."

"That's the reason why Michigan fisheries workers are putting increased effort into improving lakes for fishing—laying down gravel for spawning beds where it is needed, constructing shelters where young fish can find refuge from enemies, trying to increase the fertility of lakes so they'll produce more food and more fish worth catching."

You can buy a ready-made fixture or make one yourself, cheaply and easily. Just wire a standard lamp socket and an intermediate socket in series, screw a 40-watt incandescent lamp into the larger and an ozone lamp into the smaller fixture, and plug the cord into the nearest outlet.
