

Over 150 Attend P.T.A. Fun Night

A gratifying crowd of over 150 gathered at the Middlebelt School Monday evening for the Middlebelt Area P. T. A. pre-Christmas Fun Night.

A surprise "This Is Your Life" program honoring Whaley Orr, past president of the Middlebelt P. T. A. and well known Springbrook resident, started the program.

A group of Tenth Grade girls, winners of the Farmington High School Talent Show held Saturday night, entertained with their Charleston dance routine. The Little German Band provided plenty of laughs with their comic musical renditions.

Providing another bit of laughter with her portrayal of a country school teacher who comes to the city was Mrs. Eva Newman, a teacher at the Middlebelt School.

Looking Ahead By DR. GEORGE S. BENSON

tary said, "there are fewer man-days being lost in strikes now than at any time in recent history." He feels that the labor-management philosophy of the Eisenhower Administration is responsible, in large degree, for continuing high production and lowering strike figures. "The philosophy is simple," he observed. "It holds that Government must be neutral in the area of labor-management relations. It provides a framework of law for local settlement of disputes. Free collective bargaining will work in such circumstances — and it is working."

Secretary Mitchell had a challenge to pass along to the institution of education. "One of the most pressing problems of national progress and security," he said, "is the development of the full potential skills of the individual. We are being wasteful in America with the precious asset of human capability. A broad objective of education might well be the development of our human resource to its ultimate usefulness. We're barely scratching the surface now. Education is fundamental in this objective. It holds the key to a wondrous future."

Integrity is the 'first step to true greatness.
