WELL--THERE YOU ARE--

And here we are—and here's the ad. That there's a quote and a unquote—and it's a way to get started. We always write this on Tuesday morning and right now it's snowing real pretty so we sort of think of somethin' to cook that takes a while and sorta stinks up the house—and what could do that better than pig hocks and kraut? We've some pig hocks for 29c a lb. and some No. 2 cans of Defiance kraut at 2/23c. Now that would take care of one meal and fer another one maybe some liver and bacon so that we get all our vitamins. Fer the bacon there's some sliced and packaged for 59c a lb.—and it's pork liver for 28c a lb. As long as you've got a whole pound of bacon maybe some bacon and eggs, huh? We have some strictly fresh large eggs for 59c a dozen—and we aint kiddin' when we say strictly fresh. They really—really are. Maybe yer figgerin' on all that fer breakfast so you'll want some juice, wench? We still have a special on Stokleys orange juice—3 for 45c—or if you'd like a dozen it'll cost you pretty cheap—just $1.69. At that price yuh can't afford to be without it. Since it's all breakfast we're talkin' about let's git to the coffee and toast stuff. Fer coffee it's Defiance for 99c a lb. and fer stuff on the toast it's Vlasic butter for 59c a lb. and some strawberry jam—huh? Wouldcha be willin' to pay 59c for a 24 oz. jar of Aunt Janes jam that's got some big whole strawberries in it yet? Havin' some company this week end? Could you use a canned ham—about a 12 lb. average—fer 79c a lb.?
