Education Through Fine Arts

Fine Arts Program Scope, Purpose In Lower Grades To Be Shown April 1

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles explaining the program of Fine Arts education now being conducted in the elementary schools of the Farmington Township School District.)

"Education Through Fine Arts," a program by the Farmington Elementary Schools, will be presented at the Farmington High School Gymnasium on Thomas Street on Friday, April 1. Over 300 students will participate in the program which will show the scope and purpose of the Fine Arts program in the elementary schools of Farmington.

The Fine Arts, art and music, are represented in the Farmington Township Elementary Schools by programs that are an integral part of the educative system, according to R. E. Benjamin, elementary art consultant. "At one time, band, vocal music and art were considered, 'extra curricular', a thrill not as important as reading, writing, and 'rhymetic' something that would be important," he stated.

"Today, educators feel that the arts are important and have made them a part of the general curriculum. That is why the classroom teacher in Farmington teaches art and music right along with the other subjects, Benjamin said. "It is the general feeling that children like this program because they have more time devoted to it."

"Band, too, is considered a regular part of the students' work. The child leaves his regular room twice a week for hand class," he added.

Jeanne Wells, elementary music consultant; Lloyd Smith, elementary band director; and Benjamini, elementary art consultant, working closely with Emma Selde, Don Hessler and Ken Lachmann, Elementary School principals, and Miss Zuelke, Elementary Coordinator of the Farmington Schools, will consolidate the efforts of the students and teachers in presenting a program designed to inform the public of the part that is being played by art and music in education.
