then and protect the basic elements of our American system. The Farm Bureau leadership feels that No. 1 depends on the success of No. 2. And for this reason, the Bureau's grass roots educational project is of great worth to all of us in America.

Here is what the Farm Bureau is preaching and teaching in every phase of its citizenship educational project: "We believe in the American competitive enterprise system; that man's search for progress should be encouraged by maintenance of opportunity, not hindered by illusions of security; that a person should be rewarded in accordance with his productive contribution to society; that every man is entitled to own property; earn money honestly, save, invest and spend as he chooses;

"(and to continue) that property rights cannot be taken away without infringing on rights guaranteed by the Constitution; that the Constitution is the basic law of the land, and that its interpretation should be in accordance with the intent of its authors; that government should operate impartially in the interest of all; that government's regulatory functions should be based on facts; that government should provide only a minimum controls and aids; that government should stimulate, not discourage individual initiative.

The Bureau's fundamental agricultural economic concepts are stated thus: "Grow for profit while the market wants. Get bigger markets — at home and abroad. Cut costs — on and off the farm. Permit the earning of honest dollars. Any program which has the result of expanding agricultural output in the absence of a comparable increase in effective market demand is contrary to the interest of farmers."

Since I was born and raised on a farm, operate a farm today and have been close to the agricultural scene all my life, I am confident that our farm population is inherently self-reliant and that, when given all the facts, it will be a potent force against encroaching Socialism.

was in the legislature. His name has been mentioned both hopefully and seriously for the past four years.

Republicans led by Senators Haskell L. Nichols (R-Jackson) and Lynn O. Francis (R-Midland) flew the Cobo flag early.

After a caucus, it was decided to go ahead with a luncheon in Detroit, at which time Cobo would be asked to declare himself — or at least to start thinking about his chances.

A week before the luncheon, State Republican Chairman John Felkens called on Cobo, almost unannounced.

The meeting was considered the first party overture. Legislators felt a trifle slighted.

The third group, always behind the scenes, is a number of Detroit business and industrial executives who have backed Cobo for non-partisan offices in the past.

The executives figured they were overlooked in the rush to get the popular mayor for the candidacy.

Cobo is extremely quiet about all the hubbub.

In the past, he has waited for certain signs before moving. He has always come out on top in his election campaigns and insiders feel he will wait to see how his strength might carry over into a partisan battle.

But, the performance furnished strong evidence that Republicans are interested in winning back the governor's chair in 1956, whether the candidate is an old-line party faithful or not.
